FINAL DESPERATE ATTEMPT IS MADE TO CUT TAX 25 P.C.

House Would Give It Big
Vote But Committee
Wants To Pickle It To Embarrass Coolidge.

PLANS GO AHEAD

By A. O. HAYWARD
(1 N. S. Staff Correspondent.)
Washington, March 13.—A final
desperate effort was in progress to day among regular Republicans in the House to satisfy President Coolidge
by passing a separate measure the 25 per cent 1924 tax reduction on income taxes for 1923.

Although leader Longworth carried
the President information the legislation could not be put through the House before the first quarterly
statement of tax payments falls due Saturday, others were busy laying
plans to rush the bill through the House after it had been torn from
the hands of a means committee.

Chamberlain, Illinois, and Hawley,
Ore., were working on Republican members of the committee, trying to induce them to report out today the
tax reduction bill which is copied from
the House bill for the 25 per cent
tax reduction as incorporated in the House bill when it passed the House four times previously a similar effort had been made with the Republican committee and each time
it failed.

Chamberlain of the House rules committee urged Chairman Green, of
the means committee, to bring the bill into line, and argued with
him to bring his influence to bear upon all Republicans. Since the bill could be brought out in the ways and means committee could get a special rule to insure action on it in the House. All the leaders are satisfied if the bill
is brought to a vote in the House it would pass by a big majority.

With these movements in progress,
Congressman Frear, leader of the independents, was sitting tight in opposition to separation of the 25 per cent
tax reduction from the general
tax bill. He contends there are too
many good features of the bill to sacrifice to a presidential veto by withdrawing from it one of the most attractive provisions.

In the position he has the support
of Democratic committeemen.

Brophy And Enemies In Bitter Tilt Today During Which The Lie Is Passed

Altoona, Pa., (March 13 (INS).—A
bitter fight between supporters of District President John Brophy and
his enemies broke out on the floor of
the annual convention of District
Number two, United Mine Workers
of America today when Brophy took
the floor to explain his authorization
of expenditures of more than one million dollars in strike relief during the Pittsburgh county strike which started
in April of 1922, and continued for sixteen months.

Charges of "liar" floated about the
convention floor during the wrangle
that followed Brophy's one-hour
speech of explanation.

Brophy declared he had the entire
support of the officers and executive
board of District Number Two during
the strike relief work, and also stated
that International President John L.
Lewis approved his course. Brophy
asserted the International President
John L. Lewis approved his course.
He only asserted the union fought the
case of the striking miners until
every hope of victory was lost.

T. D. Stiles, Editor of the Penn-
Central News, a labor publication published at Cresson, who was one of Brophy's strongest opponents was not present at today's session. He represents one of the locals in his district.

"You know we were up against the
most powerful combine of capital in
the country as far as opposition to union labor is concerned," Brophy asserted in his speech today.

At noon on Brophy's annual report
is expected late today.

CHARGING FALL AND SINCLAIR WITH A CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD GOVERNMENT COOLIDGE COUNSEL ENTERS SUITS TO RECOVER OIL TAKEN FROM THE TEAPOT

U. S. Special Attorneys
Say Ex-Secretary of Interior Led President
to Believe Deal Proper.

SAY IT IS ILLEGAL

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 13 (INS).—
Charging former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and Harry F.
Sinclair, president of the Mammoth
Oil Company, with conspiracy to de-
fraud the United States, the government today filed suit in the federal court here to cancel the lease under
which Sinclair obtained rights to the oil on the Teapot Dome Naval Reserve.

The government's suit was based
largely on the allegation that an executive order issued by the late president Harding on March 31, 1921, was invalid and illegal, but it was charged
that this order, which gave Fall authority to dispose of certain oil lands,
was obtained from the President
through misrepresentation.

The suit was filed by Atlee Pom-erene and Owen J. Roberts, the special counsel named by President Coolidge to conduct the oil litigation for
the government.

Their complaint asked that the
court proceed as follows:

1.—Issue a temporary injunction re-
straining the Mammoth Oil Company
from further operations under its lease of April 7, 1922, and its agreement of Feb. 9, 1923.

2.—Appoint receivers to take possession of the Teapot Dome pending
the conclusion of the litigation.

3.—Issue a final injunction prohibiting any official of the Mammoth
Oil Company, including Sinclair, from trespassing on the Teapot Dome.

4.—Enter a decree holding the
lease of April 7, 1922, and the agreement of Feb. 9, 1923, null and void.

5.—Enter a decree commanding the Mammoth Oil Company to surrender
the agreements to the government for cancellation.

6.—Enter a decree commanding Sinclair to repay the government for all
oil taken from the reserve.

7.—Compel the Sinclair Crude Oil
Purchasing Company and the Sinclair
Pipe Line Company to prove that they have any right to the lands they
now occupy in Wyoming.

8.—Grant any other relief for the government that the court deems advisable.

The government's bill in equity
quoted the statute under which the secretary of the navy has control over
naval oil reserves, such as the Teapot
Dome, declared that the Harding executive order was illegal and in-
valid, and then said:

"Such order was obtained from the President of the United States by representations, persuasions and activities of Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the Interior, and the President, in making said order acted upon said
representations.

The representations were false in
that all represented to the president that said order was a proper order, and that its execution and pro-
mulgation was desired for the public benefit and for the advantage of the United States, while in truth and in fact Fall desired that the said order
should be made in order that he might deal with the lands not in the interest of the United States, but to
the advantage, profit and benefit of
defendant, Mammoth Oil Company,
and in particular of Harry F. Sinclair.
The representations so made were in
the interest of and for the purpose
ultimately of benefitting the defendant, and not in the interest of and for the benefit of the United States of America.

"All of said representations made
by Fall were false and untrue and
were at the time known to be false
and untrue and were made by him for
the unlawful purpose of enabling him,
as secretary of the interior, to effect a pretended and unlawful transfer of rights in said lands from the government of the United States to the Mammoth Oil Company."

Washington, March 13 (INS).—
Judge Wm. S. Kenyon, of Iowa, to whom President Coolidge offered the
portfolio of Secretary of the Navy,
has informed Mr. Coolidge he cannot serve, according to reliable reports
here today.

Judge Kenyon had a long conference with the President at the White House this morning, but declined to
state what decision has been reached.
His friends, however, asserted he had
turned down the offer.

Washington, March 13 (INS).—
Skeletons were rattling in the closets
of official Washington today as the Brookhart-Wheeler Committee dug
deeper into the morass of sensational
inference and insinuations concerning the relationship that existed between Attorney General Harry M.
Daugherty and Jesse W. Smith, his
"man Friday," whose tragic suicide
a year ago has never been fully explained.

Mrs. Roxie Stinson, divorced wife
of Smith again was the chief witness
before the Senatorial committee that
is investigating Daugherty's fitness
for his post. And it was expected
that she would continue her half told
story of yesterday concerning the
profits she said came to the dead man
through his close association and long
intimacy with Daugherty, profits
from stock deals and from sources she intimated were most mysterious.

All her knowledge of these matters
she has told the committee, came
from conversations with the dead
man. Although they were divorced
eight years ago, after only a year and a half of married life, Smith supported her until the time of his death,
she said, and she frequently saw him
and talked with him about his business in Washington, his association
with Daugherty and his frequent attendance on Presidential trips as the
personal guest of the late President
Harding and the Attorney General.

She did not specifically charge that Daugherty was a party to these mysterious deals, but she said Smith had intimated to her that he was, always referring to "we" as meaning himself
and Daugherty.

Friends of the Attorney General
were indignant today at the nature
of the testimony, pointing out that none of Mrs. Stinson's testimony
would be accepted as legal in any
court of law, and the fact that the

Score another for old Clearfield county, noted for its production of men and women who take their places
on the top rung of the ladder of success in the business, intellectual and art circles of the nation.

This time it happens that the subject of our story is not exactly a native of the county but her forbears are of Clearfield county, so-called and that, we believe, is what counts.

Following is a wonderful music article from the pen of the able critic of the Pittsburgh Press. His subject is little Miss Viola Mitchell, 11-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Atlee D.
Mitchell, 4125 Main street, Pittsburgh, Pa., and granddaughter of the late David Mitchell of Curry Run.

A couple of years ago the family visited the home of their cousins, Dr.
and Mrs. W. P. Thorp, of Winburne, and it was on this occasion that some Winburne people heard the little artist.

The Progress is glad indeed to sing
the praises of such a wonderfully interesting juvenile. Following is the story carried by the Sunday Pittsburgh Press:

Mrs. Mountz Candidate
For National Delegate, Stands By The President

At a well attended meeting of the Republican women of Center County,
held at the Hotel Phillips, Philipsburg, last evening, Mrs. Ella J.
Mountz, candidate for National Delegate, delivered the following address:

"It is needless for me to say that I am highly honored by an occasion
such as this, and that it makes me
feel very happy to see so many active Republican women as well as Republican men who are interested in my candidacy and in the success of the Republican party. I am not much given to making speeches but your
efforts and friendliness surely call
for a little more than a formal recognition.

"I am very glad to be here and to be able to work with you in this campaign, which because of its national importance will become a part of the history of the Republican party and
of the development of our form of representative government. These are great days in politics and especially in Republican party politics. Every day we read some new piece of startling news from Washington and of course our opponents, the Democrats,
will try to have us believe that the only way to save the country is by electing a Democratic President.

"It happens, however, that in the big investigation at Washington,

GIRLS WILL TRY AGAIN

The Girls Basketball team of the Y
M. C. A. will play the Philipsburg Girls Saturday night on the Y court at 8:30. This is the second game for the Clearfield girls since their organization a month ago, and they are practicing hard for the contest. Their opponents won over them a few weeks ago on their floor and the Y girls are anxious to make good this time.
The team will be composed of C.
Davies, Capt.; J. Cramer, N. Thurston,
R. Carry, C. Walker, L. Walker, E.
Chase, H. Myers and K. Gorman. They will practice tomorrow night at 6 o'- clock. A preliminary will start at

PENNSY RAILROAD MEN GET INCREASE

Philadelphia, March 13 (INS).—Approximately 22,000 employees of the Pennsylvania railroad will benefit through a five percent wage increase announced today. The increase affects engihelpers and is retroactive to January 16, 1924.

Agreement on the new wage scale
was reached yesterday at a meeting of representatives of the company and composers at her finger-ends, approved by such artists as Spaulding, Reiner, Alter, the renowned Seivick, soloist with one of the leading symphonies of the United States—it seems rather difficult to credit, does it not? Yet all this is true of Viola Mitchell, the 11-year-old daughter of Dr. Atlee Mitchell, 4125 Main street

Pittsburgh, whose playing has drawn the attention of the musical world to the Steel City.

Viola is not a prodigy! She is simply a born musician, a child whose unusual intelligence coupled with an uncanny ability, together with excellent training, seems destined to place her in the foremost ranks of musicians. For three years and a half she has studied with Miss Margaret Horne, her entire knowledge received from that instructor. From the first her progress astounded her teacher and finally drew the attention of Seivick, one of the greatest violin instructors today, who at once predicted a brilliant future for the girl,
waxing enthusiastic over her artistry.

The noted Auer and Spalding, two of the world's finest artists did likewise.
Weary though these masters have

dreds of "parentally selected" "gen-

200 MEN RUSHING REMOVAL OF SNOW FROM DUBOIS ROAD

The Clearfield-DuBois State road is
again plugged tight with snow following the terrific storm of Tuesday last,
which very obligingly passed Clear-
field-by.

There was more than a foot of
snow on top of the hills from Chestnut Ridge through to Coal Hill near Luthersburg and the high wind following or coming along with it
plugged the road with mountainous
drifts at five different places on the route.

The largest drift is at Chestnut
Ridge where the road is jammed
with snow for a distance of more
than 1000 feet, the drifts ranging
from 7 to 15 feet in depth, the snow
being packed so tight it can bear a man's weight. At the point where the Anderson Creek road comes out
onto the State road there is another 2000 feet of drift. Two thousand feet
were also removed at the Pottsville
Construction Company's camp. At Coal Hill another wedge of 2000 feet
was removed, while at Salen 500
feet of drift were taken out.

Road Superintendent Westcott and
Foreman Carlson have had a crew of 200 men at work the past two days
trying to get the road open. As these men are receiving $4.50 per day, some
idea of the expense of keeping the
road open through the winter will be gained.

Contributions To Any Newspaper Should Be Short, Legible, Signed

Communications to any newspaper,
particularly those intended for publication, should be carefully written
typewritten preferably, on but one
side of the paper and the subject matter given careful consideration.

Do not indulge in personalities and
touch only on subjects of general interest. There are a number of communications in the office today that
have not been published because they
are illegible in some cases and in others so rambling that no sense can
be made of them.

The Progress is anxious to get communications of any kind that are of interest and urges readers to send
them in, but does insist on accuracy,
neatness and some attempt at composition. Above all things sign your name to the article. They cannot be considered otherwise.

Please do not ask us to print, as
news, anything that will not be of interest to the general public, clippings
are desired only when the subject
matter has a local news angle.

We do not want to discourage the
sending in of news; that is what we want but we must be the judge of its
value.

The task of selecting news is ever
and daily becoming a greater one.
Rarely does any newspaper use but
a small per cent of the available news.
It would not be wise to do so. A good newspaper ought to be prepared like
a good menu, not everything known
to the culinary art and had in the family larder, but a well balanced

Poetry Not News

Incidentally, poetry is not news
and cannot be accepted as such. When it is desired, in connection with memorials and obituaries, the charge is ten cents per line for publishing.

section of the High School league and,
by that token, best qualified to main-

ownership of the cup, which was in possession of the local

Unknown to the 600 pupils the draped with the red and black

final score was 26-13.

This was the final game in the play-
off of the triple tie between Punxsy,
DuBois and Clearfield. The local team
won from Punxsy on the DuBois floor
Tuesday evening. The winning of this game makes Clearfield High a three-times winner of the league championship and thereby clinches for our league cup which becomes the property of the High School winning
it three times.

Coach Reed has again demonstrated his exceptional ability as an athletic coach and deserves the man-compliments being given him by followers of the team. The boys making up this team of champs are also entitled to every praise. They are, one and all, a fine bunch of boys. They are not only capable athletes, but perfect gentlemen, and true sportsmen
as well, as every team they have met this season will bear witness. Coach Reed and his team are a credit to Clearfield High and Clearfield town as a whole.

Hero's hoping they win at Grove
City.

As "Scoop" Saw It.

DuBois High's passers although fighting to the last were "cut outclassed," that's all. The Clearfield team after playing the previous night came back and clearly demonstrated their superiority over DuBois in all departments of the game. Although the DuBois boys put up a "form of standing defense which worked effectively the last two periods, DuBois

get points, Moulthrop and De Arment
turning in a score of four points each.
After going at world-beating speed

Agricultural Committee
In Senate Says a Big Boost In Cost Is Made Necessary to Farmers.

Washington, D. C., March 12.—An
increase of practically 60 per cent
over the prevailing marketing price of American farm products will result
from the enactment of the McNary-Haugen agricultural export bill, reported favorably by the Senate committee on agriculture.

This increase in turn will immediately and automatically be reflected
in higher food costs for American consumers, according to the committee's report, which justifies what in effect
is a price-fixing device for farm products on the ground that it is necessary to rescue the agricultural population from bankruptcy.

In its discussion of the McNary-
Haugen bill, the senate committee
frankly declares that it is one of the
most far-reaching legislative propositions ever presented to congress. Concurrent with its approval practically
every farm commodity will be worth
at least 60 per cent more than it commands in the market today, and it is foretold that the price may actually
be doubled because of the stimulating
and speculative features of the proposed legislation.

In substance, the sole object of the bill, the committee asserts, is to raise
the prices of farm products to the general level of the present prices of
other commodities.

It creates an expert commission,
composed of the secretaries of agriculture, treasury and commerce and
the chairman of the tariff commission,
to carry out the provisions of the bill. The corporation is to have a capital stock of $200,000,000, to be furnished by the federal government,
but which is to be returned to the treasury at the end of five years, when
the commission will be legally terminated.

The first task of the commission
will be to determine the average value
of farm products and their relation
to other commodities during the period of 1905-1914.

With this information before it, the
commission is required to reorganize
the entire cost structure by bringing
the value of farm product to a level
with other prices.

"From the statistics compiled by
the labor department," asserts the report "it appears that the average
price of all commodities today is approximately 60 per cent higher than
in the period from 1905 to 1914 while
the price of wheat has remained practically the same."

In defining the ratio of wheat to
other commodity prices, in the opinion of the committee, it would be necessary to give the farmer a present
market value of $1.80, or 60 cents
more, than its present average price.
The price of all other farm commodi-
ties would be similarly increased.

When the commission finds that the
ratio price as computed is greater
than the prevailing domestic price of
any agricultural commodity, and
that there is a surplus of such commodity for export, it will be required
to purchase at the pre-determined
price the surplus of such commodities

While disclaiming that the bill is not a price-fixing measure, since it
leaves any person free to sell at any price he may obtain, whether above or below the ratio price, the commission
admits that the commission will be in
the position of a willing purchaser for
certain quantities of certain commodities at an advertised price that may

the shooting showed several one, many ordinarily easy shots go to defense was a real trump, the Duke team finding it harder to place an most defenses.

Bob Wilson and Nick Brown split scoring honors with nine points each. Four field and one foul goal, while their fight helped greatly in the victory. Nick completely outplayed "Big Red" Nofalar, of DuBois, while Nofalar's reputed strength was an undetermined quantity. Ken Barnes came out with three field goals in the first position, going from guard to forward, while at all times he showed extra fighting energy. Mitch, although of scoring one point, gave the all league team pickers something to think about in his unsteady guarding. Bill Boyce also served a full sentence. Bill showed real fight, which finally bubbled over in a burst of enthusiasm that almost scared the crowd. Tony Rufferty, Ray Maurer and Ken Davis also saw service against the DuBois youngsters and the big town boys couldn't keep them down. Clearfield's advantage demanded to know why a second stringer wasn't sent in at the first part of the game.

"Soup" Young, of Ridgway officiated, both games in the style, giving moral satisfaction, his good work greatly appreciated by all the fans.

After a full five minutes of scoreless play at the start, Brown, DuBois, the star with the first score, shooting from mid-floor. Bob Wilson drew the blood for his team with a perfect outside dekker, only to have Johnny Knuthrop drop in his only field goal and nose Clearfield out of the lead for the first period 4-2.

Clearfield found the basket the second period and from that time on was just a matter of time. Clearfield ended the second period leading by a count of five points.

Clearfield came back and DuBois riding it as the third stanza ended. The last frame marked the heaviest scoring of the tilt with Clearfield increasing their lead 26-13 as the tide it ended.

Coch Reed and his proteges received hearty congratulations from both teams coaches, each declaring that the best team had won, while all types of good luck apels were handed to Clearfield from everyone.

The team went direct from Punxsy Grove City, taking nine players.

I have now taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Food Medicine, the Liver Pills, and six boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets. I am feeling very good now and shall continue taking them for a while. I have been telling my cousin about the medicine and she wants to take it, too. I always recommend it." — Mrs. HENRY C. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved these symptoms by removing the cause of them. Mrs. Smith's experience is but one of many.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, over 121,000 replies were received, and 98 per cent. reported they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

McNary-Haugen Bill Will Raise Price Farm Products

be much higher than the world market price. This, the committee believes, will "peg" the price at the sum agreed upon by the commission for the entire available domestic supply.

The committee declares that to enable the commission to carry out its mission it will be necessary that the domestic price shall be as high as the agreed-upon export price.

Since the commission will not be in

position to determine the export price of commodities, it will be compelled, under the terms of the bill, to pay a higher price for products than it will be able to obtain for them in the world markets, and this loss is to be recovered by placing what in effect is an assessment upon all commodities sold in the domestic markets.

The senate committee illustrates the workings of the proposed law by stating that the present exportable surplus of wheat is 150,000,000 bushels for which the probable price obtainable in the foreign markets is estimated at $1 per bushel. Were the commission now levying this surplus, it would be required to pay $1.50 a bushel, according to its estimate of its ratio to other commodity prices. Consequently, asserts the committee, the proposed commission would be confronted with a loss on wheat alone of $75,000,000, and to recover this sum it would levy an assessment of 11 cents on each bushel of wheat sold in the domestic markets. To provide a market of safety, the committee declares the commission would be compelled to increase this assessment to 20 cents per bushel.

The farmer would then be paid $1.30 for his wheat, 11 cents would go to the exporter, and the remaining 9 cents would be used by the commission to cover its expenses of operation.

If the McNary-Haugen bill is not approved, and similar legislation is not enacted, the committee declares, the farmer, for both export and domestic wheat, will, under existing conditions, receive $1 per bushel for his crop.

It is predicted that from the fund retained by the commission it will be possible to pay the farmers as dividends an additional 5 cents per bushel.

To prevent foreign nations from flooding the country with products, which might be attracted by the high arbitrary prices established by the commission, the bill authorizes the President to adjust rates on farm commodities to a prohibitive level.

Justifying the added burden upon American consumers that will be imposed by the provisions of the bill, the Senate committee says that the condition of agriculture has been steadily growing worse since 1920.

"Forced farm sales, bankruptcy in rural communities, increasing needs for credit and other conditions threaten the entire agricultural structure," the report asserts.

In 1922 farmers abandoned their farms at the rate of 100,000 a month, while foreclosures are increasing at an alarming rate, until even the financial and industrial institutions of large sections of the country are threatened, declares the committee, which points out that during the past seven months there have been more bank failures than during the preceding five years.

By determining the ratio value of farm products, the committee says, the total annual income of the farmers of the nation will be increased between $3,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000. That is the sole object of the measure, in the committee's opinion.

TEARS AND LAUGHTER FOUND IN BIG FILM

Father and Son Comedy Film Integral Parts of "David Copperfield" Picture

You cry one minute and laugh the next. In the big film production of the famous Charles Dickens novel, "David Copperfield" there is a world of bright and cheerful comedy as expounded in the merry life of the unctuous Mr. Micawber, while on the other hand there are dark clouds that hover over the house of David Copperfield.

The same, familiar characters that Dickens made famous in his popular novel are typically impersonated upon the screen by capable players. One of the best known, perhaps, was the illustrious Mr. Micawber, whose sayings in the Copperfield novel have become a byword wherever the English language is spoken.

This elaborate production is coming to the High School tomorrow night.

The New York Central Railroad Company earned a net income of more than $45,000,000 of dollars last year at the same time increasing its operating efficiency almost three per cent.

1922. The financial report of the company shows that gross operating revenues for the year were $365,175,112, compared with $316,620,098 during 1921, an increase of $48,555,014. The operating expenses of the railroad company for 1922 amounted to $278,602,021, as against $250,400,469 in 1921, an increase of $28,201,552, which, deducted, left the net income from railroad operation $86,573,091 for 1922, as compared with $66,219,625 in 1921, an increase of $20,353,466.

Railway tax accruals, the report shows, increased $2,692,434 in the one year. Taxes of $17,361,159 were paid in 1922 and the taxes for 1923 amounted to $20,063,594, an increase of 15.5 per cent.

Net income accruing to the railroad the report shows, including all operations, amounted to $45,339,436 in 1922, an increase of $24,704,240.

Dividends paid in 1923 amounted to $17,432,976, as compared with dividend payments of $12,876,984 during 1922. The dividend rate for 1923 averaged 6 1/2 per cent, being 5 per cent for the first quarter and 7 per cent for the last nine months of the year, as against 5 per cent in dividends paid in 1922 and preceding years.

Gross earnings of the Twentieth Century Limited last year were more than $7,500,000, and the first million of her 1924 earnings was passed early in February. The train is being operated in from two to five sections east and west every day, and a record of six sections eastbound was established in January. The January business was a record high month.

The earnings of the Century are greater than the entire passenger business done by such roads as the Lehigh Valley, Delaware & Hudson, Chicago & Alton, Chicago Great Western and Oregon Short Line; and approach that done by the Reading, Chesapeake & Ohio, Seaboard Air Line and Washburn. In fact, four-fifths of the railroad earnings of the country do not enjoy passenger earnings so large as that of this leader of the New York Central and New York-Chicago limited.

The Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railway Company reports net income of $1,061,498 for 1923, compared with a deficit of $1,191,165 the year before. This is equivalent to $6.94 a share on $10,500,000 common stock. Total assets were $72,032,542 and profit and loss surplus $4,277,430.

Mellon Stands
By The President

Democrats as well as others have been concerned. Whenever anything like that is going on in Washington these days is happening, the opposition always says that now is the time to turn the rascals out. However, we all realize and the Democrats realize also that we have at the head of our Government in Washington a man, President Coolidge, who is not waiting for the election to be held before he turns the rascals out. President Coolidge is not making political capital out of the honor of his country. We could present many proofs of this but what clearer evidence could there be than his non-partisan and patriotic selection of an outstanding Democrat, and of an outstanding Republican, the latter by the way, a Pennsylvanian, Mr. Owen J. Roberts, to serve as special counsel in prosecuting those of whatever party who have betrayed the public trust.

He tells us clearly and simply where he stands on any of the great issues of the day. In this respect, in his classic simplicity and firmness of expression he reminds us of Lincoln at Gettysburg. So I think we will not be making any mistake but in fact will be rendering a distinct service to our country, if in this election we stand by the President and the Republican party. We have reason to be proud of the Republican party, but how much more so when we realize the character of the man in the White House. If the good work that he has started is to be carried on, and not lost in the rivalries of opposition politics, we must back him up by voting for the Republican ticket. We should also take a great deal of pride in supporting Secretary of the Treasurer Mellon, another Pennsylvanian, whose contribution to the development of our economic and financial policy will live in American history. There is a great deal of talk nowadays about income tax reduction.

needed inspiration for certain Democrats who were willing to play politics with the welfare and prosperity of the country. Until Mr. Mellon spoke, and Mr. Mellon sits at the right hand of President Coolidge in the Cabinet at Washington, there is no thought of income tax reduction. Now everybody is for it, but we must not forget that the man who started the movement, which if carried on in a proper manner, will mean so much for the development of business and employment, was a Republican Secretary of the Treasury. There are other great Republican leaders in the service of the nation, whose worth is recognized the world over. Let us not lose the advantage of their inspiration and of the work they have already opened up.

"We surely will not lose it if we stand loyally by the Republican party under whose policy the country has developed marvelously since the World War. Now, of course as a candidate for National Delegate, it is necessary for me to say a word or two about myself."

"I do not think it is right to ask anyone to vote for you unless the people know something about you, and yet, I suppose I will have to leave it to some one else to tell all about me. But perhaps that will not be required as I am sure, as I look about me that you all know me fairly well. Perhaps, I may say this that as a business woman and a woman voter I combine qualifications which may seem desirable to you. In any event, I count it as one of the distinct privileges of my life to ask you to vote for me."

"This has been for me a most interesting meeting and I hope that we all will be as bright and happy on election day as we are now. My candidacy is not of so much importance as the things for which you and I stand—the honor of the Republican party and the ideals of the American Republic."

"Draw" Shots in Golf.

The flights of golf balls and base balls in the air are similar to the trajectories of billiard balls on felt cloth and governed by the same laws. A blow with a mallet on the under side of a golf ball is precisely the same as a draw shot in billiards. The polished ivory needs the rough surface of the felt to produce resistance, and the tenuous air needs the corrugated surface of the golf ball for the same purpose.

Photographing a Mirage.

It is possible to photograph a mirage and obtain very good results. As we are told by a photographic expert, "the simplest way is to stop down the lens to say, U. S. 64 (f. 32), and make a series of exposures ranging from one-one-hundredth to one-twenty-fifth of a second, depending upon the intensity of the light. The ray filter will give better color values, and can be used to better advantage, but this will mean lengthening the time of exposure accordingly."

Latin America.

The term Latin America includes all the countries of South America, of Central America and Mexico, so called because they were settled and peopled by Latin races, chiefly Spanish. They all speak the Spanish language in different degrees of purity, except Brazil, where Portuguese is the national language, and Haiti, where French is national. Portuguese and French, however, are classed as Latin languages.

Smart Whims of New Hats

March Millinery

Spring hats all have some way of revealing happy dispositions. Some have gay circles of petit point on their crowns and many are shiny with Roman criss ribbon. It's easy for women to smile from under the brims of hats as jolly as these.

Tricornes for Chic

"Feminine hearts will be cornered" came in to our heads as we saw these irresistible tricornes of taffeta. Fitting down tightly over closely-clipped heads, they are truly smart with their simple cocarde trimmings. A flannel fruck of most any color can be perfectly matched, you will find.

Surely a Variety

They are like the whims of a charming woman, unexpected but delightful. Lustrous taffeta and pliable satin are combined, in many cases, with new silky straws. The sweeping lines of a black tricorn have for sole adornment a lace veil which winds around the throat. Embroidery in Spanish shawl pattern makes vivid a rather large picture hat. Crowns of petit point are seen on the newest cloches, and faillie ribbon is cunningly fashioned into skullcaps and turbans. Colors are vivid or delicate, and sometimes have a black background.

ONE-ROOM SCHOOLS

Contrary to a widespread opinion, the little old country school house is far from the vanishing point. Furthermore, for the benefit of those who, for sentimental or other reasons, prefer it to the modern school house, it may be stated that the one-room country school as it exists today is inefficient and expensive.

These facts were brought out clearly in a discussion at the recent convention of the National Education Association. A state commissioner of education who had been studying the matter reported that one-fourth of the school children in the United States are still "housed in one-room schools of the crudest sort," and that nearly one-half of all rural teachers still teach in such schools. Many of the buildings, he declared, are 40 years old and without any modern conveniences. As for the one-room school teachers, only about one of them out of 15 is as well trained for the work as the average teacher in the city schools.

The remedy proposed is the obvious one of consolidated rural schools, modern in construction, equipment and teaching force, which provide for the country children as good educational facilities as the city school system. This innovation has made great headway in progressive states, and in progressive sections of some of the more backward states. The sooner all come to it, the better for the rising generation and for the future of the country.

BEAVER RESTORATION

Those who have been fearing the early and complete extermination of the North American beaver will be cheered by Ernest Thompson Seton's testimony that beavers can be restored fairly easily wherever and whenever necessary. One such experiment, conducted with an eye to the demand for beaver fur, was very successful.

When the first white men began to settle the region now northern New York state, it is estimated that there were approximately 1,000,000 beavers already on the ground. Within 300 years not a single beaver remained. In that region at least, man had succeeded in exterminating them.

In 1901 a group of men interested in the experiment of beaver-ranching put 34 of the animals, brought from another part of the country, back into the ancient beaver haunts. Ample protection was given them. Today there are 20,000 beavers in that region.

But, however, Nature took a hand, with her insistence on a system of checks and balances for all things. Under full protection the beavers increased to such great numbers that their dams became too effective as flood-producers. Whole sections of valuable spruce and white pine were flooded to their detriment. Other crops were destroyed, necessary roadways were swamped and even railway embankments were menaced. So crop-owners and railwaymen protested and the ranch grew no larger.

However great the demand for beaver fur in the outer world, the beaver rancher cannot, in fairness to his neighbors who grow timber or use the highways or require railways, raise more beaver than can be kept within reasonable bounds.

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

By ROGER W. BABSON

World-Famous Statistician and Business Authority

II. — THE SIX LAWS OF SUCCESS

Intelligence does not consist of college diplomas. Memory is not intelligence. A phonograph or dictaphone is not intelligence. A great public library may contain a tremendous number of facts, but it is not intelligent. Once Mr. Rockefeller was asked to whom he owed his intelligence. He replied:

"I owe my intelligence as I have to my father and mother. They were the ones who trained me. I remember that when I entered business, my father loaned me $1,000 at 10 per cent. interest. When I loaned him the money, he gave me a little talk on the fundamentals of credit and how to establish a credit. This information was the basis of my fortune. He not only instructed me as to the necessity of being able to meet my obligations, but he tested me thoroughly in the process."

The Loan is Called

Whenever there was a pinch in the money market, my father would call my loan. The first time, I was unable to meet it, and he gave me a terrible scolding. The next time he called it, I was able to pay one-half of the thousand dollars back, and he again talked sharply to me. In a few weeks, however, he came back to reloan me the $500 which I had paid him. After that I was in shape always to meet my obligation, and when ever he called for the thousand dollars I was able to pay him. Only by such tests and training is intelligence really taught. Intelligence cannot be learned from books or lectures. Teachers and tutors may indicate the way to travel, but the traveling must be done by you and by me.

Intelligence is the third wall of the success structure. But as Rockefeller indicated, it is the intelligence which comes from experience and training. Hence the importance of laboratory work and the inspection of plants in connection with the education of men for life. Books are useful as tools; but tools become a help only as men through experience and practice learn to use them.

An Assistant to Edison

On November 11, 1859, there was born in London a baby boy, who was destined to come to America and develop the greatest electric power system in the world. The boy was named Samuel Insull, and he landed in America February 28, 1881. For some time he worked in New York in helping Mr. Edison develop the lighting system of that city. It was 1889, however, before Mr. Insull's services were really recognized, and 1892 before he was given his great opportunity as the President of the Chicago Edison Company.

Many people have been connected with the development of the electrical industry. The older readers of this article will remember names like Whitney, Widener, Yerkes and Brady. These and their associates all belonged to the old school, who seemed to care little for the public. Samuel Insull, however, developed a new form of the electrical world.

A Dreamer Succeeds

He was the first great promoter in the industry who seemed to have imagination and vision. Many have called Insull a dreamer; others have mistaken his initiative for recklessness. Few men, however, have done more constructive and creative work or overcome more technical and psychological difficulties. When today there is a great meeting of men in the electrical industry two names stand out in prominence, Insull of Chicago and Duve of Detroit. When the outstanding characteristics of these men are discussed all agree that their success is due to their initiative and imagination.

Sales $1,600,000 a Week

Samuel Insull started as an office boy at $1.25 a week. When he was given the presidency of the little electrical company in Chicago, the total output of the company was only four thousand horsepower. Today, Insull's power stations have a generating capacity of about 700,000 horsepower, and use between three and four hundred tons of coal a day, in addition to the output of numerous water powers; he employs some 20,000 people, and the income from the sale of his power reaches the prodigious sum of about a million dollars a week.

I once asked Dr. Steinmetz, the little giant of Schenectady, to what new invention he was devoting his energies. He replied that he didn't have much time to devote to new inventions, for it kept him busy keeping up with Insull. Insull was continually

mer of Tremont Temple, Boston. The son-like his father—is a man of the highest principles, tempered with a Yankee shrewdness keen as steel. When he left college he went to Chicago and soon became secretary to the founder of Armour & Company. In due course he became head of an important department of the Armour plant. After a time, disregarding Mr. Armour's solemn warning that he would scratch a poor man's back for the rest of his life, he resigned his position and went to Boston, where he became a reporter on The Boston Post. Feeling the need of further training, he spent a year or two at Colby College, where he specialized in literary and economic studies.

The Secret of Lorimer's Success
If you will ask Mr. Cyrus H. Curtis,

sons have become great captains of industry, because, like Lorimer, they combine the religious emotions of the father and the hard-headed thriftiness of the mother. But none has succeeded as well in the most difficult business of publishing. Lorimer has not only become a great success, but he has attained success in a most difficult industry. His success has been due to his intensity. Hence, intensity or concentration is one of the essentials to success. Whether one is in a profession, in manufacturing, or in business—indeed, in the work of the mother in the home—concentration on one task is necessary for success.

A Small Photographer Arrives!
Three names are invariably linked together, "Rochester," "Photography," "George Eastman." Here's a man who started in the most humble way possible in an almost unknown business. This business he developed from almost nothing to one of the greatest industries in America. The word "Kodak" which he originated, has become a household name, and his films can be purchased in every city and hamlet all over the world.

When he started in the photographic business, only wet plates were used. Then dry plates were developed, and he added to his business by making these dry plates. In the course of his work something happened whereby the process was lost. He determined to find it again. He travelled, he studied, he sought the solution of the dry plate problem. He became intensely interested in photography in all its branches. He was very eager to perfect photography. Finally, he hit upon the film and then the transparent film. For years men experimenting with moving photography had been waiting for the transparent film. Eastman's interest in photography really made possible the moving picture industry as well as brought millions to himself.

After Eastman had made his untold millions, however, he did not lose interest in photography. He is as much interested in it today as ever. He loves to take pictures on every occasion. The great moving picture theatre, the most beautiful in the world, which he has erected at Rochester and given to the people, is simply the result of his interest in the film. He loves photography in every branch.

I have been personally interested in George Eastman, because he is the famous "Mr. Smith" who was so generous in his gifts to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, my alma mater. Eastman is consequently always discussed at Alumni Meetings and class gatherings of the Institute. He has employed a great many graduates, especially men graduating from one of the chemical courses. Ask any of them the reason for George Eastman's success, and he will tell you that it is due to his great interest in his work, and to his broad sympathy and human understanding. Yet all of the men referred to in this chapter were interested in their work and in other men. Interest in one's work and sympathetic understanding of other men seem to be an essential to the structure of success. Without a real love for one's daily job, success in that job—whether it's running a store or a home—is impossible.

Six "Laws" of Success
All of these six qualities, integrity, industry, intelligence, imagination, intensity and interest, are necessary for one hundred per cent. success, and it is absolutely essential to possess most of them to a very highly developed degree. A study of successful men and women shows this clearly to be true. In many instances these men have developed most highly the factor in which they were weakest when starting out in life. Every young man and woman should study these six qualities and endeavor to develop them all, but especially the one in which he or she is weakest.

Mr. Edward Bok, or Collins, the Business Manager, what is the secret of Lorimer's success, they will reply, "Intensity and concentration." He does only one thing, and he thinks only one thing. It is impossible to get him interested in any outside enterprise. He has got his mind on The Saturday Evening Post and nothing can swerve him to the right or left. He has been offered all kinds of honors, directorships in great corporations and the like, but without avail. Banks have tried to get him to act on their boards; the Government has offered him honors, but like Saul of Tarsus he says, "This one thing I do."

Not How Much, But How Well
One day I asked one of his acquaintances why it is that Lorimer doesn't play golf. The reply was: "Lorimer won't do anything unless he can do it well." He hasn't the time to learn to play golf well, and consequently he won't play it at all. This same principle underlies everything that he does. Other minister's

Stop it! Stop what? Stop saying, "I'm afraid!" Stop thinking it. Yes, I know we humans inherited fear from the days when big snakes grabbed monkey babies out of the trees, according to the scientists. Animals learned early that life was a matter of constant vigilance.

But how far have we progressed, for breakfast—these grocers beyond the hen who takes fright at the shadow of the hawk, if we go through the day uttering at every those hats (or chiffon stockings, or

turn remarks like these:

"I'm afraid you'll be late to school, Dick."
"I'm afraid Betty will be croupy tonight. She didn't wear her rubbers."
"I'm afraid we won't get there till the first act is half over."
"I'm afraid there isn't enough coffee for breakfast—these grocers haven't come yet."
"I'm afraid there won't be one of those hats (or chiffon stockings, or

Little fears, you say? But every day is made up of little things. When the big fears come the little ones run and hide their heads, it's true, but they are real enough to cloud the morning on ordinary occasions.

Fear brought on the World War. Fear is arising again. Fear brings disease and disaster to every home on earth, in greater or less degree. Fear and greed are responsible for the thousand and one newspaper headlines such as "Business Slumps Foretold," "Coal Companies Plan Combine," "Labor Conclave Demands Injunction," "Stock Exchange Sees Prizes Tumble."

Caution? By all means. But can-

tion should be the child of Sound Sense, not Fear. Caution thinks things through, plans wisely and goes ahead.

Let caution guide. Then travel cheerfully, hoping all things, believing all things, enduring all things—but fearing nothing but fear the joy killer.

SENDS IN FIRE ALARM FOR 'RUCK ON FIRE

The delivery truck of the O'Neil bakery at Clearfield caught fire and burned up at along the Clearfield-Woodland road just beyond the Clearfield creek bridge last evening about 8-30 o'clock. Some excitable individual who saw the burning machine turned in a fire alarm and raised the fire department out to the creek regardless of the fact there was nothing there could do when they got there.

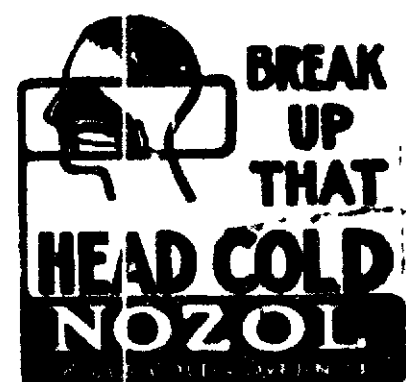

There was a couple of days' strenuous work for the fire department in this neighborhood. We can point out a few subjects for him and would like to head the list with the fellow who sends in such fire alarms.

FINE BOUQUET FOR LOCAL BOYS

In speaking of Tuesday evening's basketball team between Clearfield and Punxsy at DuBois, the sport writer of the Punxsy Spirit says Punxsy was liked because they met a better team. Referring to the Clearfield team the writer says:

"For Clearfield the whole team deserves credit, but Wilson, Harrie and Brown were the principal point getters. These three men are good. Brown because of his height and shooting ability and the other boys because they are good, clean all round fast players."

The Clearfield team deserves all the flowers any lover of basketball can give it. As a whole it is fair, clean and each member a gentleman, and basketball player. Punxsy fans and players alike take their collective hats off to the boys from Joe Wilson's town."

Charging Fall And Sinclair With Conspiracy

Some entered into by Fall and De- with Sinclair on April 7, 1923, the complaint said the lease was "null and void in that its pretended execution was effected without authority of law." As to the agreement of 1923, for the construction of government oil storage tanks by Sinclair, this was declared to have been made without advertisement or competitive bidding and was "therefore fraudulent, illegal, null and void."

In one paragraph of the government's bill it was stated that secretary of the navy Denby took no part in the negotiations of the Sinclair lease and contract and "affixed his signature thereto merely in a colorable attempt to convince the complainant of his in its terms and an exercise of discretion in connection with its making."

Detailing the negotiations between Fall and Sinclair, the complaint said that other persons, viz., the Texas Company, the Pioneer Oil Company, Edward L. Doherty, Leo A. Stoen and others, tried to get leases in the Teapot Dome, but were denied an opportunity by Fall.

It was denied that Fall "steadfastly refused to take the opinion of the solicitor of the department of the interior or the attorney general of the United States concerning the legality of the leases and charges were made that Fall 'secretly communicated' to Sinclair that he could not obtain any leases in the Teapot Dome until he prevented quit claim deed for the lands embraced within the agreement."

"Said Albert B. Fall," the complaint went on, "made the obtaining of such a quit claim deed a condition precedent to the obtaining of a lease upon the said lands after it had been fraudulently and secretly arranged between him and the said Harry F. Sinclair that the said Sinclair should obtain a quit claim deed for said mining claims, with the purpose and with the effect of preventing and disabling competitors of the said Sinclair who desired to obtain a lease upon the said lands from bidding for such lease and obtaining the same."

Reference also was made to the agreement whereby John C. Shaffer, Denver newspaper publisher, obtained certain lands in the naval reserve by negotiations with Sinclair and Fall, and to the fact that public announcement of the Teapot Dome lease was not made until several days after the contract was consummated.

"In negotiating and concluding said agreement," the bill declared, "Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair did fraudulently combine, confederate and conspire in the manner and by the acts herein above set forth, and other matters, and things, to defraud the United States of Alaska."

"(A)—By granting said lease upon said petroleum lands in violation of law;

"(B)—To favor and prefer said defendant Mammoth Oil Company over and above all other persons in violation of law;

"(C)—To insure to said defendant Mammoth Oil Company the valuable right to receive and take to exhaustion all of the oil and gas which might be obtained from said lands in said agreement mentioned;

"(D)—To lease the said lands to said defendant Mammoth Oil Company by said agreement at an inadequate, improper, and fraudulent consideration."

committee did not allow Daugherty's counsel Paul Howland to challenge the testimony or cross examine the woman they declared was "stacked against Daugherty."

Senator Wheeler, the "prosecutor" who went to Columbus and personally conducted Mrs. Stinson to Washington, decided today to go deeper into the stock dealing stories. Mrs. Stinson testified Smith had given her a small block of shares in White Motors and in Pure Oil, which she said Smith told her "they" got for nothing.

To this end a subpoena was issued for Will R. A. Hayes, said to be the Columbus manager of Samuel Underleider and Company, a Cleveland brokerage concern, through which, she said, Smith had done most of his trading under the pseudonym of Will R. A. Hayes, and Will R. A. Hayes Number 2.

Hayes was instructed to bring his books, and they were expected to reveal whether these "bund accounts" were kept.

The "Hendbo keeper" of the Midland National bank at Washington, D. C., which Daugherty's brother, Mel Daugherty is President, also was subpoenaed. It was in this bank that Mrs. Stinson testified her husband told her he had $175,000 in eastern money.

It was in this bank too, she said that Smith had a personal account of $18,400, which she claimed after his death and which Mel Daugherty, she said refused to give her on the ground it was a part of Smith's estate and consequently would have to be probated according to Smith's will.

At that time, she said, she told Mel Daugherty that "she might have to open up something he would rather not have opened up."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

She is not really a dolly. That is, she is not a toy and she is not of the big doll family.

She is a dolly in daintiness and she is a dolly, too, because she is lovable and huggable just as a dolly is.

But she is a real live person and she is called Dolly as a pet name.

You see, she is a pet just as a doll is a pet.

When her family tried to call her by her real name it didn't seem natural. It was a nice name to use for school and for important and superior occasions, but it was not the name which sounded natural for her family to use when they wanted to let her know how much they loved her.

And so it began. They called her Dolly at first when they wanted to show her in just one more little way that they thought she was the dearest person and the sweetest person and the loveliest person.

And then they wanted to let her know in just one more way that they loved her so that they had to call her by a pet name.

But it didn't seem to them that there was ever a time when they didn't want to show her how they felt about her and so, from having at first called her Dolly every little while, they began to call her Dolly every single time they spoke to her.

Now once a year, as is the custom with people, she had a birthday. And the family wanted to show her how happy they were about that. They were so happy all the time having Dolly around them that they didn't quite know how they could show her it any more—and yet on a birthday every one wants to show just a little more of the love that is felt that some one else has in having another birthday and they hope many, many, many more.

So they planned a little celebration. Just as they do each year. For each year it was so important that there must be a little celebration for their beloved Dolly.

So this year they gave a very small party for her. They loved Dolly just as much as they loved the big party later on but those who loved her the most wanted one little celebration all their very own for Dolly.

They gathered around a little table and they sang this song, making up a funny little tune as they went along:

Dolly we love you ought to know that.
And we know that you know it, too.
You're neither too thin nor are you too fat.
You're perfect just being you.

Dolly we love you yours our own Precious one.
You make us so glad and so gay.
You're full of action and full of fun.
And you make us feel just the same way.

Dolly we love you, and we mean what we say.
When now as we sing this song,
We wish you so many happy returns
Of the day.
Many, many happy returns of the day!

Then they have Dolly their presents, but not very many—just a few little things, for this year they had a surprise for Dolly. She was to pick out her little gifts herself on the next day, for they knew there were several little things she wanted which she could pick out just right.

After that they had peach ice cream, for they thought it was a good thing to have the ice cream of a flavor which was like Dolly—and Dolly was just like a little peach, too!

They had a cake with candles and they made speeches and cheered, and Dolly sat at the head of the table with a wreath about her head and at the back of her chair ribbons gayly were tied there.

Green ferns were decorating the table and a carrot made mostly out of marshmallow stood upon the table, too, for Dolly was very fond of marshmallow.

And as the smiles of all looked so brightly happy in the candlelight Dolly's heart glowed warmly that she was so loved and the hearts of the others that they had Dolly to love.

For what is nicer than on a birthday to show, just a little more than at any other time of the year, how much we love the one whose birthday we are celebrating and about which we are rejoicing?

In the Courts

Thomas Reclites, the DuBois man who was jailed for moonshining several weeks ago by Judge Chase on his plea of guilty, and who later asked for his release because he was suffering from a bad heart, was removed from the jail yesterday to the hospital at the County Home on account of his physical condition.

Judge Chase granted an alternative mandamus yesterday afternoon to Editor John F. Short of the Clearfield Republican, who is asking the court to help him collect $111.30 which he alleges to be due him for publishing last fall's election proclamation. The election proclamation was published in the Republican, Raftsmen's Journal and two other county newspapers. Editor Short alleges Sheriff Lowell told him the price for printing the proclamation would be the same as was paid for its previous publication. When bills for publishing the proclamation were presented to the County Commissioners for payment the publishers of the Journal and the other two papers received $241.50 and that amount was also paid Editor Short. The latter demanded the additional $111.30 but it was refused him. Finally, as one of its last official actions, the old Board of Commissioners passed a resolution allowing the bill and directing the balance claimed by Mr. Short be paid.

County Controller A. G. Woodward, when he took charge the first of the year, refused to allow the claim, which he styles "exorbitant, unfair and unjust," and the mandamus was asked for by Wallace C. Egan, representing the claimant.

Judge Chase made the return day Monday, March 24th, at 10 o'clock and the matter in dispute will be aired at that time.

A real old Kentucky moonshine raid was staged out at the end of Ogden avenue about 8:30 last evening by Sheriff T. J. Lowell, Chief of Police R. J. McMullen and Assistant Ernest Woodridge. The raid was made at the home of Lewis Wisor, which is located in Lawrence township just beyond the borough line.

Wisor, a former resident of Boggs township, built himself a frame bungalow at the Ogden avenue location and moved his family, in which there are seven children, therein last summer or fall.

The authorities claim they have had many complaints against Wisor as a bootlegger and allege they had a purchase of moonshine from him on Tuesday last. When they had secured this evidence of sale Sheriff Lowell made information against Wisor and had a search warrant issued for his premises.

Last evening the officers mentioned visited the house. When they arrived at the place Mrs. Wisor answered their knock at the door and, the officers say, attempted to prevent them from entering. They forced their way into the house and shortly thereafter Wisor came in from outside. The search warrant was read and a search of the house made by Sheriff Lowell and Chief McMullen, while Officer Woodridge was left to guard the woman.

A small quantity of beer was found in the house and the "terrible and chief" went outside with Wisor to continue their search, it being the opinion of the officers the fellow had been tipped off and had removed his supplies from the house.

At this point Mrs. Wisor attempted to leave the room and as that was against orders Officer Woodridge endeavored to prevent her from leaving. In doing so he seized the woman and hearing the scuffle the other parties ran into the house. The Chief of Police went to the assistance of his fellow officer while Wisor hopped into the fray in defense of his wife. Two of Wisor's little sons had already gone to their mother's aid and the five handed battle was waging fast and furious when Sheriff Lowell tapped Wisor on the head with his mace. The blow cut a gash over Wisor's eye. He kicked the Sheriff in the groin and was only subdued when another blow from the mace laid open the top of Wisor's head and knocked him down. A pair of handcuffs were then placed on his wrists. Mrs. Wisor who the officers allege was attempting to secure a butcher knife, was also handcuffed until a semblance of order was restored.

Wisor bled profusely from the cuts in his head and the house and furniture were smeared with blood after the battle, while the officers were also profusely spotted by their prisoner's profusely spattered by their prisoner's gore.

The alleged bootlegger was taken before Squire F. G. Chorpennig, who held him in $1000 bail for his appearance at May term of court. After bail was entered Sheriff Lowell took Wisor to Dr. Yeane's office, his battered head was given attention after which the doctor looked after the Sheriff's injury from Wisor's kick.

James Ralph Miller, by his attorneys Bell, Boulton & Forsyth, began an action of ejectment in the Clearfield county courts today in an effort to recover possession of 657-1000ths of an acre of land in Lawrence township now occupied by Emerson Fenton.

Blair Shultz, by his attorneys Miller & Hartwick, filed notice of suit in Prothonotary Ralston's office this morning against Don G. and Carlton Mahaffey of Mahaffey, in an effort to recover $486.70 alleged to be due for work done by Shultz in driving headings for defendants at their mine opening in Bell township.

Attorney J. Mitchell Chase filed notice of suit on behalf of C. E. McMurray of Philipsburg and against John Hyder of Houtzdale, for the purpose of recovering $584.80 said to be due for work done and material furnished for a building Hyder erected at Houtzdale.

Yes—it can be done

The finest of cars can be sold at these prices

THE Studebaker name guarantees to you the utmost in fine-car construction. For 72 years it has stood for quality, for honest workmanship, for square dealing.

It has always stood for style and class. Remember Studebaker carriages—supreme examples of fine coach building.

Consider our facilities—mark what we have at stake. $90,000,000 in assets; $50,000,000 in plants and equipment; $10,000,000 in body plants alone.

Note our multiplying sales—the sensation of Motordom.

It is fair to assume that we can and do build the finest cars and at Studebaker prices.

What is a fine car?

A fine car means the best materials any cost can buy. We use 35 formulas for steels, each known to be best for its purpose. We pay a premium of 15% on some to get the formulas exact.

All Studebaker models are equipped with Timken bearings. There are few cars in America, regardless of price, which equal ours on this point. In our Light-Six, for instance, we put more Timken bearings than are used in any competitive car, within $1,500 of its price.

A fine car means fine engineering. We spend $500,000 yearly on that department, employing 125 able men.

It means careful construction. We have 12,500 up-to-date machines. 1,120 of our operations are exact to 1/1000 of an inch. 360 are exact to one-half of 1/1000 of an inch.

It means infinite pains. For instance, we machine all surfaces of our crankshafts as was done in Liberty Airplane Motors. We are the only makers of cars at our prices who do this.

It means careful inspection. With us it means 30,000 inspections in the manufacture of each Studebaker car.

Luxury and beauty

It means a car to be proud of. Our body finish includes 15 coats of paint and varnish.

Chase Mohair is used to upholster our closed bodies—made from the soft fleece of Angora goats.

We offer much extra equipment.

Where savings come

Then how do the Studebakers so far undersell any comparable cars?

Because we build so many. The fixed costs are divided by enormous output—150,000 cars per year.

Because we build our own bodies. The saving to you on some types is up to $300 per car.

Because we make our own forgings, saving another profit there.

Because our plants are modern and efficient. We have spent $2,000,000 on them in the past five years.

Because we keep our men, make them partners, pay them large bonuses to stay. Changing men is expensive.

Because we conduct this business in every way on the best modern lines.

What buyers save

The Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car sells for $1,045. Under ordinary manufacturing conditions it would cost you from $1,200 to $1,400.

On our Special-Six the difference might be $400 to $700.

On our Big-Six type the difference may run into thousands, depending on the number produced. For this car compares only with the highest-priced cars in Europe and America.

You will respect the Studebaker methods when you come to know them. You will admire the cars they create. You will delight in the values.

Remember that last year 145,167 fine-car buyers, after comparisons, chose the Studebaker models. So many people could not be wrong.

Learn why they did so before you buy a car at $1,000 or over. You owe that to yourself.

Go and See Why Studebaker Leads

Last year, 145,167 fine-car buyers paid $201,000,000 for them.

There are 13 models.

Prices begin at $1,025.

Go see the reasons for this trend. See why sales have almost trebled in three years. Why these cars have become the sensation of Motordom.

You owe that to yourself before you buy a fine car.

Some of our Big-Sixes, for instance, have two nickel-plated bumpers, one or two extra disc wheels with cord tires, a courtesy light, a motometer, steel trunk, etc.

This factory, remember, is the ancient home of fine coach work.

FRANCE CONTINUE UPWARD SWING

New York, March 13. (INS.)—Continuing its advance, as sensational as its recent decline, the French franc was up 19 1/2 points at the opening of the foreign exchange market today. The opening price was 4:40 1/2 cents, on the confirmation of reports at J. P. Morgan and Company had secured a group of bankers to throw $100,000,000 gold credits to the French government to check the drop of the franc.

Bureau Of Internal Revenue To Be Next Target Of The Senate

Washington, March 12. (INS.)—A sweeping Senatorial investigation into the bureau of Internal Revenue which handles all federal tax matters was authorized by the Senate this afternoon. The resolution of investigation was introduced by Senator Couzens, Republican of Michigan, who has engaged in frequent disputes with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon concerning tax policies and conditions. The resolution passed without a recorded vote. Five Senators will constitute the investigating committee.

Remembering a Name.

Two women who were picking out the wall paper for an apartment had made some progress, but had not finished when it was time for luncheon. The saleswoman had been obliging and erudite, and on the way out the women asked the name of the manager, so they could call for his services later. His name was Sheridan, and they decided to lunch by thinking of "Sheridan's Hide." Two hours later they returned and said they would like to see Paul Revere.

Disappointed.

"Did you enjoy the fair?" "I was disappointed in one thing," replied Mrs. Needleplate, who has gone in for country life. "I looked all over the cattle pavilion for an equinox, but I guess no one exhibited any this year."

All the Difference She's Seen. "Hi," said Cordelia Kiljoy. "The chief difference between men and women that I've noticed is that a man admits he has to learn what he knows, and a woman says it's her intuition that tells her."—Kansas City Star.

notice" when Viola played.

Daniel Mayer, concert manager, under whose guidance the greatest artists of the present day make their appearance, declared that never in his eight years of concert management had he been so impressed after he had heard the child play. Similar remarks and encouragement upon every hand, culminating in the child's appearance Friday afternoon as soloist with the Cincinnati Symphony at the special school children's concert in Syria mosque, have resulted in Viola being engaged as soloist with the Cincinnati organization to play next Friday night before a distinguished audience in Cleveland, and at a special affair with the same organization March 15, in Chicago. She will play in Buffalo, March 18, in concert and before a group of notables in Washington, D. C., on April 29. Conductor Reiner of the Cincinnati Symphony has written the management of that organization, asking that the child be engaged as soloist at one of the prominent concerts of the symphony in its home town next season.

Viola Mitchell was born in Pittsburgh, Pa. at an early age she evidenced a desire for things musical. Her parents, desirous of having their child achieve fame, realized the importance of bodily health and sound education, and put off allowing the child to begin musical study until eight years of age. She is a student at the Winchester school, and a leader in all branches of study.

There is none of the pale aesthetic about Viola. Very much the contrary. She is a robust, unusually healthy girl, with large expressive eyes and beautiful features, whose chief pleasure is playing out-of-doors, romping about, indulging in all the activities of the modern girl. She takes her violin playing in a commonsense manner that is amazing. There is none of the spoiled darling about her. She hears the comments upon her ability, thanks those speaking, and looks longingly out of the window, a great deal more interested in what she might be doing at home in the yard outside. She studies diligently, absorbed in her work, never dreaming over it, but getting down to hard, serious study, until mastering the task at hand, she leaves it as completely as she had studied at it, and turns to other matters.

The child's powers of concentrating are uncanny. She masters the longest of compositions in unbelievably short time. Friday afternoon she played the Mendelssohn-Bartholdy concerto in E. Minor, Op. 64, giving the three movements in exquisite fashion. She draws a lovely bow, her tone as clear and precise as it is full of beauty and rich, vibrant quality. The Kreisler Viennese melody served as an encore with Mrs. Lawrence Litchfield at the piano. The concerto was, of course, given with orchestral accomplishment.

Flattering offers to exploit the child have been refused, for the sole aim of the small girl's guides is to avoid commercializing her gifts and to develop them to their highest possibilities.

Insinuation Here.

"The semiannual appearance of the assessment blanks," said Sackville McKnutt, "reminds me that people seem to have a whole lot less money and jewelry in their possession at such times when they report robberies to the police."—Kansas City Star.

Comfortable Bed for Baby.

Babies are carried on, or rather in, long pillows by the peasant women in Hungary. A baby is laid on the pillow, the end is lapped over and is usually long enough to come up to the infant's chin. A string is then tied around the pillow, holding it close about the youngster, thus making a snug and comfortable little bed.

What Baby Had Seen.

A new baby brother came to the home of little John. In his joy he brought in his pets to show the new arrival. He brought his cat and then his pet chicken, and then standing back he said in triumph, "Now the baby has seen three animals—the cat, the chicken and the stork."

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights. Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. Wishes That Come True.

Good wishes have a way of realizing themselves. They have a potency almost magical, and the girl who is always wishing the best for other friends finds her hopes realized for herself, as though kindly wishes were a sort of gracious boomerang, coming back to the heart that sent it out. Just wishing others joy, if the wish is from the heart, helps to add something to the happiness of the world.

Only Himself to Blame.

"I'm a self-made man, I want you to know." "Old chap, you should have bothered for help."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

JORDAN'S

MRS. MARGARET L. TROSTLE

In the death of Mrs. Margaret L. Trostle, the world lost one of the best and noblest of women. Her quiet, sincere Christian living endeared her to everyone. Her faithfulness and love for her family made home a blessed place for all. She was devoted to her lord, and his service in the church and its organization. Her life was one of those epistles of God known and read of all men, and it bore a message of love, hope and faith.

On Oct. 23rd, 1874, Margaret Luella Oatwell was born, and on June 18th, 1924, became the wife of Prof. W. P. Trostle, the present superintendent of schools of Clearfield county. Twelve years of their married life was spent in Houtdale, previous to moving to Clearfield, where they have lived for the past five years. Three daughters were given them, Ethel, Miriam, and Naomi. Her mother, two brothers, and three sisters survive her. The first break by death in the circle of children.

Mrs. Trostle has been ill for many months, but became worse in December, and for the past 12 weeks has been confined to her bed. She was a good soldier bearing her affliction with exemplary fortitude and unflinching patience. She wanted badly to live, and fought a good fight, but the will of the Master was stronger than her body and her love for her family and her love for her work. On last Thursday afternoon she slipped away, leaving her family in grief. This heart condition with other complications made it impossible for her to overcome the dread disease, and Tuesday night at 8:45 she passed quietly out from the face of earth in the presence of her loved ones.

Funeral services will be held at the Trostle home on Clearfield street, on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Hillcrest cemetery. She has gone to her reward in joy, but has left a family stunned and heartbroken, and a community poorer because of her going. The Lord dealt tenderly with those who sorrow, comforting them with the assurance of His presence, and His care for all who put in His hand their lives for Him to keep. He cannot fail.

"A wrinkle on the brain is worth two on the face"

Science tells us that every idea that comes into our minds makes a little line, or wrinkle, on our brains.

And so when you learn that "it pays to send your washing to the laundry," you'll add another wrinkle to your brain.

But you will also avoid a lot of wrinkles that washday work and washday worry would bring to your face. Which is our idea of a fair exchange.

Let our service take away that washday work and worry—it washes everything and irons all the flat work at a most moderate cost per lb.

FINAL DESPERATE ATTEMPT IS MADE TO CUT TAX 25 P.C.

Vote But Committee
Embarrass Coolidge.

PLANS GO AHEAD

By A. O. HAYWARD
Washington, March 13.—A final
desperate effort was in progress to
House to satisfy President Coolidge
by passing a separate measure the
come taxes for 1923.

Although leader Longworth carried
the President information the legislation could not be put through the House before the first quarterly
statement of tax payments fails due Saturday, others were busy laying
House after it had been torn from

Chamberlain, Illinois, and Hawley,
Utah, were working on Republican members of the committee, trying to in-
tax reduction bill which is copied from
the House bill for the 25 per cent
tax reduction as incorporated in the House bill when it passed the House four times previously a similar effort had been made with the Republican committee and each time
it failed.

Chairman Hays of the House rules
committee urged Chairman Green, of
the means committee, to bring the
bill into line, and argued with Hays to bring his influence to bear upon all Republicans. Since the passage of the bill could be brought to a vote in the House, Hays acted on it in the House. All Republicans are satisfied if the bill
is brought to a vote in the House it would pass by a big majority.

With these movements in progress,
Congressman Frear, leader of the in-
dependents, was sitting tight in opposi-
tax reduction from the general
many good features of the bill to
sacrifice to a presidential veto by withdrawing from it one of the most important provisions.

In the position he has the support
of Democratic committeemen.

Altoona, Pa., (March 13 (INS).—A
bitter fight between supporters of District President John Brophy and
his enemies broke out on the floor of
the annual convention of District
Number two, United Mine Workers
of America today when Brophy took
the floor to explain his authorization
of expenditures of more than one million dollars in strike relief during the Pittsburgh county strike which started
in April of 1922, and continued for
sixteen months.

convention floor during the wrangle
that followed Brophy's one-hour
speech of explanation.

Brophy declared he had the entire
support of the officers and executive
board of District Number Two during
the strike relief work, and also stated
that International President John L.
Lewis approved his course. Brophy
asserted the International President
John L. Lewis approved his course.
He only asserted the union fought the
case of the striking miners until
every hope of victory was lost.

T. D. Stiles, Editor of the Penn-
Central News, a labor publication published at Cresson, who was one of Brophy's strongest opponents was
represents one of the locals in his
district.

"You know we were up against the
the country as far as opposition to
union labor is concerned," Brophy asserted in his speech today.

At noon on Brophy's annual report
is expected late today.

CHARGING FALL AND SINCLAIR WITH A CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD GOVERNMENT COOLIDGE COUNSEL ENTERS SUITS TO RECOVER OIL TAKEN FROM THE TEAPOT

U. S. Special Attorneys
Interior Led President

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 13 (INS).—
Charging former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and Harry F.
Sinclair, president of the Mammoth
Oil Company, with conspiracy to de-
fraud the United States, the government today filed suit in the federal
which Sinclair obtained rights to the
oil on the Teapot Dome Naval Re-
serve.

The government's suit was based
largely on the allegation that an executive order issued by the late president Harding on March 31, 1921, was
invalid and illegal, but it was charged
that this order, which gave Fall authority to dispose of certain oil lands,
was obtained from the President
through misrepresentation.

The suit was filed by Atlee Pom-
erene and Owen J. Roberts, the special counsel named by President Cool-
idge to conduct the oil litigation for
the government.

Their complaint asked that the
court proceed as follows:
straining the Mammoth Oil Company
from further operations under its
lease of April 7, 1922, and its agreement of Feb. 9, 1923.

2—Appoint receivers to take possession of the Teapot Dome pending
the conclusion of the litigation.

3—Issue a final injunction prohib-
Oil Company, including Sinclair, from
trespassing on the Teapot Dome.

4—Enter a decree holding the
lease of April 7, 1922, and the agreement of Feb. 9, 1923, null and void.
Mammoth Oil Company to surrender
cancellation.

6—Enter a decree commanding Sin-
clair to repay the government for all
oil taken from the reserve.
Purchasing Company and the Sinclair
Pipe Line Company to prove that they have any right to the lands they
now occupy in Wyoming.

8—Grant any other relief for the
government that the court deems advisable.

The government's bill in equity
quoted the statute under which the
secretary of the navy has control over
naval oil reserves, such as the Teapot
Dome, declared that the Harding executive order was illegal and in-
valid, and then said:

President of the United States by representations, persuasions and activities of Albert B. Fall, then secretary
of the Interior, and the President, in
making said order acted upon said
representations.

The representations were false in
that all represented to the president that said order was a proper order, and that its execution and pro-
benefit and for the advantage of the United States, while in truth and in
fact Fall desired that the said order
should be made in order that he
interest of the United States, but to
defendant, Mammoth Oil Company,
and in particular of Harry F. Sinclair.
The representations so made were in
the interest of and for the purpose
ultimately of benefitting the defendant, and not in the interest of and for the benefit of the United States of America.

"All of said representations made
by Fall were false and untrue and
were at the time known to be false
and untrue and were made by him for
the unlawful purpose of enabling him,
as secretary of the interior, to ef-

Judge Wm. S. Kenyon, of Iowa, to
whom President Coolidge offered the
portfolio of Secretary of the Navy,
has informed Mr. Coolidge he cannot
here today.

Judge Kenyon had a long conference with the President at the White House this morning, but declined to
state what decision has been reached.
His friends, however, asserted he had

Washington, March 13 (INS).—
Skeletons were rattling in the closets
deeper into the morass of sensational
inference and insinuations concern-
tween Attorney General Harry M.
Daugherty and Jesse W. Smith, his
"man Friday," whose tragic suicide
a year ago has never been fully explained.

Mrs. Roxie Stinson, divorced wife
of Smith again was the chief witness
before the Senatorial committee that
is investigating Daugherty's fitness
for his post. And it was expected
that she would continue her half told
story of yesterday concerning the
through his close association and long
intimacy with Daugherty, profits
from stock deals and from sources she
intimated were most mysterious.

All her knowledge of these matters
she has told the committee, came
from conversations with the dead
man. Although they were divorced
eight years ago, after only a year and
a half of married life, Smith supported her until the time of his death,
she said, and she frequently saw him
and talked with him about his business in Washington, his association
with Daugherty and his frequent attendance on Presidential trips as the
Harding and the Attorney General.

She did not specifically charge that
Daugherty was a party to these mysterious deals, but she said Smith had
intimated to her that he was, always
and Daugherty.

Friends of the Attorney General
were indignant today at the nature
of the testimony, pointing out that
none of Mrs. Stinson's testimony
would be accepted as legal in any
court of law, and the fact that the

This time it happens that the sub-

Republican women of Center County,
held at the Hotel Phillips, Philips-

"It is needless for me to say that I am highly honored by an occasion
such as this, and that it makes me
feel very happy to see so many active Republican women as well as Repub-

efforts and friendliness surely call
for a little more than a formal recog-

"I am very glad to be here and to

history of the Republican party and
of the development of our form of representative government. These are
great days in politics and especially
in Republican party politics. Every
day we read some new piece of start-

course our opponents, the Democrats,
will try to have us believe that the

electing a Democratic President."

The Clearfield-DuBois State road is
again plugged tight with snow following the terrific storm of Tuesday last,
which very obligingly passed Clear-
field-by.

There was more than a foot of
snow on top of the hills from Chestnut Ridge through to Coal Hill near Luthersburg and the high wind following or coming along with it
plugged the road with mountainous
drifts at five different places on the route.

The largest drift is at Chestnut
Ridge where the road is jammed
with snow for a distance of more
than 1000 feet, the drifts ranging
from 7 to 15 feet in depth, the snow
being packed so tight it can bear a
man's weight. At the point where
the Anderson Creek road comes out
onto the State road there is another 2000 feet of drift. Two thousand feet
Construction Company's camp. At
Coal Hill another wedge of 2000 feet
was removed, while at Salen 500
feet of drift were taken out.

Road Superintendent Westcott and
Foreman Carlson have had a crew of 200 men at work the past two days
trying to get the road open. As these men are receiving $4.50 per day, some
idea of the expense of keeping the
road open through the winter will be
gained.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO ANY NEWSPAPER SHOULD BE SHORT, LEGIBLE, SIGNED

Communications to any newspaper,
particularly those intended for publication, should be carefully written
typewritten preferably, on but one
side of the paper and the subject matter given careful consideration.

Do not indulge in personalities and
touch only on subjects of general interest. There are a number of communications in the office today that
have not been published because they
are illegible in some cases and in
others so rambling that no sense can
be made of them.

The Progress is anxious to get communications of any kind that are of
interest and urges readers to send
them in, but does insist on accuracy,
neatness and some attempt at composition. Above all things sign your name to the article. They cannot be considered otherwise.

Please do not ask us to print, as
news, anything that will not be of interest to the general public, clippings
are desired only when the subject
matter has a local news angle.

sending in of news; that is what we
want but we must be the judge of its
value.

The task of selecting news is ever
and daily becoming a greater one.
Rarely does any newspaper use but
a small per cent of the available news.
It would not be wise to do so. A good
a good menu, not everything known
to the culinary art and had in the
family larder, but a well balanced

Poetry Not News
Incidentally, poetry is not news
and cannot be accepted as such. When it is desired, in connection with memorials and obituaries, the charge is
ten cents per line for publishing.

This was the final game in the play-
off of the triple tie between Punxsy,
DuBois and Clearfield. The local team
won from Punxsy on the DuBois floor

AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE IN SENATE SAYS A BIG BOOST IN COST IS MADE NECESSARY TO FARMERS.

Washington, D. C., March 12.—An
increase of practically 60 per cent
over the prevailing marketing price of American farm products will result
from the enactment of the McNary-Haugen agricultural export bill, reported favorably by the Senate committee on agriculture.

This increase in turn will immediately and automatically be reflected
in higher food costs for American consumers, according to the committee's
report, which justifies what in effect
is a price-fixing device for farm products on the ground that it is necessary to rescue the agricultural population from bankruptcy.

In its discussion of the McNary-
Haugen bill, the senate committee
frankly declares that it is one of the
most far-reaching legislative proposi-
tions ever presented to congress. Con-
current with its approval practically
every farm commodity will be worth
at least 60 per cent more than it commands in the market today, and it is fore-estimated that the price may actually
be doubled because of the stimulating
and speculative features of the proposed legislation.

In substance, the sole object of the
bill, the committee asserts, is to raise
the prices of farm products to the
general level of the present prices of
other commodities.

It creates an expert commission,
composed of the secretaries of agri-
culture, treasury and commerce and
the chairman of the tariff commission,
to carry out the provisions of the
bill. The corporation is to have a capital stock of $200,000,000, to be
furnished by the federal government,
but which is to be returned to the
treasury at the end of five years, when
the commission will be legally terminated.

The first task of the commission
will be to determine the average value
of farm products and their relation
to other commodities during the period of 1905-1914.

With this information before it, the
commission is required to reorganize
the entire cost structure by bringing
the value of farm product to a level
with other prices.

"From the statistics compiled by
the labor department," asserts the report "it appears that the average
price of all commodities today is approximately 60 per cent higher than
in the period from 1905 to 1914 while
the price of wheat has remained practically the same."

In defining the ratio of wheat to
other commodity prices, in the opinion of the committee, it would be necessary to give the farmer a present
market value of $1.80, or 60 cents
more, than its present average price.
The price of all other farm commodi-
ties would be similarly increased.

When the commission finds that the
ratio price as computed is greater
than the prevailing domestic price of
any agricultural commodity, and
that there is a surplus of such com-
modity for export, it will be required
to purchase at the pre-determined
price the surplus of such commodity

While disclaiming that the bill is
not a price-fixing measure, since it
leaves any person free to sell at any
price he may obtain, whether above or
below the ratio price, the commission
admits that the commission will be in
the position of a willing purchaser for
certain quantities of certain commodi-

the shooting showed several one, many ordinarily easy shots go wild or bouncing from the rim in defense was a real trump, the Duke team finding it harder to place an most defenses.

Bob Wilson and Nick Brown split scoring honors with nine points each. Four field and one foul goal, while their fight helped greatly in the victory. Nick completely outplayed "Big Red" Nofalar, of DuBois, while Nofalar's reputed strength was an undetermined quantity. Ken Barnes came out with three field goals in the first position, going from guard to forward, while at all times he showed extra fighting energy. Mitch, although scoring one point, gave the all league team pickers something to think about in his unsteady guarding. Bill Boyce also served a full sentence. Bill showed real fight, which finally bubbled over in a burst of enthusiasm that almost scared the crowd. Tony Rufferty, Ray Maurer and Ken Davis also saw service against the DuBois youngsters and the big town boys couldn't keep them down. Clearfield's advantage demanded to know why a second stringer wasn't sent in at the first part of the game.

After a full five minutes of scoreless play at the start, Brown, DuBois, the star with the first score, shooting from mid-floor. Bob Wilson drew the blood for his team with a perfect outside decker, only to have Johnny Knuthrop drop in his only field goal and nose Clearfield out of the lead for the first period 4-2.

Clearfield found the basket the second period and from that time on was just a matter of time. Clearfield ended the second period leading by a count of five points. Clearfield came back and DuBois ending it as the third stanza ended. The last frame marked the heaviest scoring of the tilt with Clearfield increasing their lead 26-13 as the tide it ended.

Coch Reed and his proteges received hearty congratulations from both teams coaches, each declaring that the best team had won, while all types of good luck apels were handed to Clearfield from everyone.

be much higher than the world market price. This, the committee believes, will "peg" the price at the sum agreed upon by the commission for the entire available domestic supply.

position to determine the export price of commodities, it will be compelled, under the terms of the bill, to pay a higher price for products than it will be able to obtain for them in the world markets, and this loss is to be recovered by placing what in effect is an assessment upon all commodities sold in the domestic markets.

The senate committee illustrates the workings of the proposed law by stating that the present exportable surplus of wheat is 150,000,000 bushels for which the probable price obtainable in the foreign markets is estimated at $1 per bushel. Were the commission now levying this surplus, it would be required to pay $1.50 a bushel, according to its estimate of its ratio to other commodity prices. Consequently, asserts the committee, the proposed commission would be confronted with a loss on wheat alone of $75,000,000, and to recover this sum it would levy an assessment of 11 cents on each bushel of wheat sold in the domestic markets. To provide a market of safety, the committee declares the commission would be compelled to increase this assessment to 20 cents per bushel.

The farmer would then be paid $1.30 for his wheat, 11 cents would go to the exporter, and the remaining 9 cents would be used by the commission to cover its expenses of operation.

If the McNary-Haugen bill is not approved, and similar legislation is not enacted, the committee declares, the farmer, for both export and domestic wheat, will, under existing conditions, receive $1 per bushel for his crop.

It is predicted that from the fund retained by the commission it will be

To prevent foreign nations from flooding the country with products, which might be attracted by the high arbitrary prices established by the commission, the bill authorizes the President to adjust rates on farm commodities to a prohibitive level.

Justifying the added burden upon American consumers that will be imposed by the provisions of the bill, the Senate committee says that the condition of agriculture has been steadily growing worse since 1920.

"Forced farm sales, bankruptcy in rural communities, increasing needs for credit and other conditions threaten the entire agricultural structure," the report asserts.

In 1922 farmers abandoned their farms at the rate of 100,000 a month, while foreclosures are increasing at an alarming rate, until even the financial and industrial institutions of large sections of the country are threatened, declares the committee, which points out that during the past seven months there have been more bank failures than during the preceding five years.

Had the prices of farm commodities kept pace with the prices of other commodities, it is pointed out, the farmer during the past year would have received for his wheat $1.58 instead of $1.07 per bushel, and $10.85 per hundred for hogs instead of $7.05.

By determining the ratio value of farm products, the committee says, the total annual income of the farmers of the nation will be increased between $3,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000. That is the sole object of the measure, in the committee's opinion.

You cry one minute and laugh the next. In the big film production of the famous Charles Dickens novel, "David Copperfield" there is a world of bright and cheerful comedy as expounded in the merry life of the unctuous Mr. Micawber, while on the other hand there are dark clouds that hover over the house of David Copperfield.

The same, familiar characters that Dickens made famous in his popular novel are typically impersonated upon the screen by capable players. One of the best known, perhaps, was the illustrious Mr. Micawber, whose sayings in the Copperfield novel have become a byword wherever the English language is spoken.

The New York Central Railroad Company earned a net income of more than $45,000,000 of dollars last year at the same time increasing its operating efficiency almost three per cent.

1922. The financial report of the company shows that gross operating revenues for the year were $365,175,112, compared with $316,620,098 during 1921, an increase of $48,555,014. The operating expenses of the railroad company for 1922 amounted to $278,602,021, as against $250,000,469 in 1921, an increase of $28,601,552, which, deducted, left the net income from railroad operation $86,573,167 for 1922, as compared with $65,119,625 in 1921, an increase of $21,453,542.

Railway tax accruals, the report shows, increased $2,692,434 in the one year. Taxes of $17,361,159 were paid in 1922 and the taxes for 1923 amounted to $20,063,594, an increase of 15.5 per cent.

Net income accruing to the railroad report shows, including all operations, amounted to $45,339,436 in 1922, as compared with $20,635,186 in 1921, an increase of $24,704,250.

Dividends paid in 1923 amounted to $17,432,976, as compared with dividend payments of $12,876,984 during 1922. The dividend rate for 1923 averaged 6 1/2 per cent, being 5 per cent for the first quarter and 7 per cent for the last nine months of the year, as against 5 per cent in dividends paid in 1922 and preceding years.

Gross earnings of the Twentieth Century Limited last year were more than $7,500,000, and the first million of her 1924 earnings was passed early in February. The train is being operated in from two to five sections east and west every day, and a record of six sections eastbound was established in January. The January business was a record high month.

The earnings of the Century are greater than the entire passenger business done by such roads as the Lehigh Valley, Delaware & Hudson, Chicago & Alton, Chicago Great Western and Oregon Short Line; and approach that done by the Reading, Chesapeake & Ohio, Seaboard Air Line and Washburn. In fact, four-fifths of the railroad earnings of the country do not enjoy passenger earnings so large as that of this leader of the New York Central and New York-Chicago limited.

The Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railway Company reports net income of $1,061,498 for 1923, compared with a deficit of $1,191,165 the year before. This is equivalent to $6.94 a share on $10,500,000 common stock. Total assets were $72,032,542 and profit and loss surplus $4,277,430.

Democrats as well as others have been concerned. Whenever anything like that is going on in Washington these days is happening, the opposition always says that now is the time to turn the rascals out. However, we all realize and the Democrats realize also that we have at the head of our Government in Washington a man, President Coolidge, who is not waiting for the election to be held before he turns the rascals out. President Coolidge is not making political capital out of the honor of his country. We could present many proofs of this but what clearer evidence could there be than his non-partisan and patriotic selection of an outstanding Democrat, and of an outstanding Republican, the latter by the way, a Pennsylvanian, Mr. Owen J. Roberts, to serve as special counsel in prosecuting those of whatever party who have betrayed the public trust.

He tells us clearly and simply where he stands on any of the great issues of the day. In this respect, in his classic simplicity and firmness of expression he reminds us of Lincoln at Gettysburg. So I think we will not be making any mistake but in fact will be rendering a distinct service to our country, if in this election we stand by the President and the Republican party. We have reason to be proud of the Republican party, but how much more so when we realize the character of the man in the White House. If the good work that he has started is to be carried on, and not lost in the rivalries of opposition politics, we must back him up by voting for the Republican ticket. We should also take a great deal of pride in supporting Secretary of the Treasurer Mellon, another Pennsylvanian, whose contribution to the development of our economic and financial policy will live in American history. There is a great deal of talk nowadays about income tax reduction.

needed inspiration for certain Democrats who were willing to play politics with the welfare and prosperity of the country. Until Mr. Mellon spoke, and Mr. Mellon sits at the right hand of President Coolidge in the Cabinet at Washington, there is no thought of income tax reduction. Now everybody is for it, but we must not forget that the man who started the movement, which if carried on in a proper manner, will mean so much for the development of business and employment, was a Republican Secretary of the Treasury. There are other great Republican leaders in the service of the nation, whose worth is recognized the world over. Let us not lose the advantage of their inspiration and of the work they have already opened up.

"We surely will not lose it if we stand loyally by the Republican party under whose policy the country has developed marvelously since the World War. Now, of course as a candidate for National Delegate, it is necessary for me to say a word or two about myself."

"I do not think it is right to ask anyone to vote for you unless the people know something about you, and yet, I suppose I will have to leave it to some one else to tell all about me. But perhaps that will not be required as I am sure, as I look about me that you all know me fairly well. Perhaps, I may say this that as a business woman and a woman voter I combine qualifications which may seem desirable to you. In any event, I count it as one of the distinct privileges of my life to ask you to vote for me."

"This has been for me a most interesting meeting and I hope that we all will be as bright and happy on election day as we are now. My candidacy is not of so much importance as the things for which you and I stand—the honor of the Republican party and the ideals of the American Republic."

"Draw" Shots in Golf.
The flights of golf balls and base balls in the air are similar to the trajectories of billiard balls on felt cloth and governed by the same laws. A blow with a mallet on the under side of a golf ball is precisely the same as a draw shot in billiards. The polished ivory needs the rough surface of the felt to produce resistance, and the tenuous air needs the corrugated surface of the golf ball for the same purpose.

Photographing a Mirage.
It is possible to photograph a mirage and obtain very good results. As we are told by a photographic expert, "the simplest way is to stop down the lens to, say, U. S. 64 (f. 32), and make a series of exposures ranging from one-one-hundredth to one-twenty-fifth of a second, depending upon the intensity of the light. The ray filter will give better color values, and can be used to better advantage, but this will mean lengthening the time of exposure accordingly."

Latin America.
The term Latin America includes all the countries of South America, of Central America and Mexico, so called because they were settled and peopled by Latin races, chiefly Spanish. They all speak the Spanish language in different degrees of purity, except Brazil, where Portuguese is the national language, and Haiti, where French is national. Portuguese and French, however, are classed as Latin languages.

March Millinery

Spring hats all have some way of revealing happy dispositions. Some have gay circles of petit point on their crowns and many are shiny with Roman striped ribbon. It's easy for women to smile from under the brims of hats as jolly as these.

"Feminine hearts will be cornered" came in to our heads as we saw these irresistible tricornes of taffeta. Fitting down tightly over closely-clipped heads, they are truly smart with their simple cocarde trimmings. A flannel fruck of most any color can be perfectly matched, you will find.

Surely a Variety

ONE-ROOM SCHOOLS

Contrary to a widespread opinion, the little old country school house is far from the vanishing point. Furthermore, for the benefit of those who, for sentimental or other reasons, prefer it to the modern school house, it may be stated that the one-room country school as it exists today is inefficient and expensive.

These facts were brought out clearly in a discussion at the recent convention of the National Education Association. A state commissioner of education who had been studying the matter reported that one-fourth of the school children in the United States are still "housed in one-room schools of the crudest sort," and that nearly one-half of all rural teachers still teach in such schools. Many of the buildings, he declared, are 40 years old and without any modern conveniences. As for the one-room school teachers, only about one of them out of 15 is as well trained for the work as the average teacher in the city schools.

The remedy proposed is the obvious one of consolidated rural schools, modern in construction, equipment and teaching force, which provide for the country children as good educational facilities as the city school system. This innovation has made great headway in progressive states, and in progressive sections of some of the more backward states. The sooner all come to it, the better for the rising generation and for the future of the country.

BEAVER RESTORATION

Those who have been fearing the early and complete extermination of the North American beaver will be cheered by Ernest Thompson Seton's testimony that beavers can be restored fairly easily wherever and whenever necessary. One such experiment, conducted with an eye to the demand for beaver fur, was very successful.

When the first white men began to settle the region now northern New York state, it is estimated that there were approximately 1,000,000 beavers already on the ground. Within 300 years not a single beaver remained. In that region at least, man had succeeded in exterminating them.

In 1901 a group of men interested in the experiment of beaver-ranching put 34 of the animals, brought from another part of the country, back into the ancient beaver haunts. Ample protection was given them. Today there are 20,000 beavers in that region.

But, however, Nature took a hand, with her insistence on a system of checks and balances for all things. Under full protection the beavers increased to such great numbers that their dams became too effective as flood-producers. Whole sections of valuable spruce and white pine were flooded to their detriment. Other crops were destroyed, necessary roadways were swamped and even railway embankments were menaced. So crop-owners and railwaymen protested and the ranch grew no larger.

However great the demand for beaver fur in the outer world, the beaver rancher cannot, in fairness to his neighbors who grow timber or use the highways or require railways, raise more beaver than can be kept within reasonable bounds.

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

By ROGER W. BABSON

World-Famous Statistician and Business Authority

II. — THE SIX LAWS OF SUCCESS

Intelligence does not consist of college diplomas. Memory is not intelligence. A photograph or dictaphone is not intelligent. A great public library may contain a tremendous number of facts, but it is not intelligent. Once Mr. Rockefeller was asked to whom he owed his intelligence. He replied:

"I owe my intelligence as I have to my father and mother. They were the ones who trained me. I remember that when I entered business, my father loaned me $10,000 at 10 per cent. interest. When I began to lose the money, he gave me a little talk on the fundamentals of credit and how to establish a credit. This information was the basis of my fortune. He not only instructed me as to the necessity of being able to meet my obligations, but he tested me thoroughly in the process."

The Loan is Called

Whenever there was a pinch in the money market, my father would call my loan. The first time, I was unable to meet it, and he gave me a terrible scolding. The next time he called it, I was able to pay one-half of the thousand dollars back, and he again talked sharply to me. In a few weeks, however, he came back to reloan me the $500 which I had paid him. After that I was in shape always to meet my obligation, and when ever he called for the thousand dollars I was able to pay him. Only by such tests and training is intelligence really taught. Intelligence cannot be learned from books or lectures. Teachers and tutors may indicate the way to travel, but the traveling must be done by you and by me.

Intelligence is the third wall of the success structure. But as Rockefeller indicated, it is the intelligence which comes from experience and training. Hence the importance of laboratory work and the inspection of plants in connection with the education of men for life. Books are useful as tools; but tools become a help only as men through experience and practice learn to use them.

On November 11, 1859, there was born in London a baby boy, who was destined to come to America and develop the greatest electric power system in the world. The boy was named Samuel Insull, and he landed in America February 28, 1881. For some time he worked in New York in helping Mr. Edison develop the lighting system of that city. It was 1889, however, before Mr. Insull's services were really recognized, and 1892 before he was given his great opportunity as the President of the Chicago Edison Company.

Many people have been connected with the development of the electrical industry. The older readers of this article will remember names like Whitney, Widener, Yerkes and Brady. These and their associates all belonged to the old school, who seemed to care little for the public. Samuel Insull, however, developed a new form of the electrical world.

A Dreamer Succeeds

He was the first great promoter in the industry who seemed to have imagination and vision. Many have called Insull a dreamer; others have mistaken his initiative for recklessness. Few men, however, have done more constructive and creative work or overcome more technical and psychological difficulties. When today there is a great meeting of men in the electrical industry two names stand out in prominence, Insull of Chicago and Duve of Detroit. When the outstanding characteristics of these men are discussed all agree that their success is due to their initiative and imagination.

Sales $1,600,000 a Week

Samuel Insull started as an office boy at $1.25 a week. When he was given the presidency of the little electrical company in Chicago, the total output of the company was only four thousand horsepower. Today, Insull's power stations have a generating capacity of about 700,000 horsepower, and use between three and four hundred tons of coal a day, in addition to the output of numerous water powers; he employs some 20,000 people, and the income from the sale of his power reaches the prodigious sum of about a million dollars a week.

I once asked Dr. Steinmetz, the little giant of Schenectady, to what new invention he was devoting his energies. He replied that he didn't have much time to devote to new inventions, for it kept him busy keeping up with Insull. Insull was continually

mer of Tremont Temple, Boston. The son-like his father—is a man of the highest principles, tempered with a Yankee shrewdness keen as steel. When he left college he went to Chicago and soon became secretary to the founder of Armour & Company. In due course he became head of an important department of the Armour plant. After a time, disregarding Mr. Armour's solemn warning that he would scratch a poor man's back for the rest of his life, he resigned his position and went to Boston, where he became a reporter on The Boston Post. Feeling the need of further training, he spent a year or two at Colby College, where he specialized in literary and economic studies.

The Secret of Lorimer's Success

sons have become great captains of industry, because, like Lorimer, they combine the religious emotions of the father and the hard-headed thriftiness of the mother. But none has succeeded as well in the most difficult business of publishing. Lorimer has not only become a great success, but he has attained success in a most difficult industry. His success has been due to his intensity. Hence, intensity or concentration is one of the essentials to success. Whether one is in a profession, in manufacturing, or in business—indeed, in the work of the mother in the home—concentration on one task is necessary for success.

A Small Photographer Arrives!
Three names are invariably linked together, "Rochester," "Photography," "George Eastman." Here's a man who started in the most humble way possible in an almost unknown business. This business he developed from almost nothing to one of the greatest industries in America. The word "Kodak" which he originated, has become a household name, and his films can be purchased in every city and hamlet all over the world.

When he started in the photographic business, only wet plates were used. Then dry plates were developed, and he added to his business by making these dry plates. In the course of his work something happened whereby the process was lost. He determined to find it again. He travelled, he studied, he sought the solution of the dry plate problem. He became intensely interested in photography in all its branches. He was very eager to perfect photography. Finally, he hit upon the film and then the transparent film. For years men experimenting with moving photography had been waiting for the transparent film. Eastman's interest in photography really made possible the moving picture industry as well as brought millions to himself.

After Eastman had made his untold millions, however, he did not lose interest in photography. He is as much interested in it today as ever. He loves to take pictures on every occasion. The great moving picture theatre, the most beautiful in the world, which he has erected at Rochester and given to the people, is simply the result of his interest in the film. He loves photography in every branch.

I have been personally interested in George Eastman, because he is the famous "Mr. Smith" who was so generous in his gifts to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, my alma mater. Eastman is consequently always discussed at Alumni Meetings and class gatherings of the Institute. He has employed a great many graduates, especially men graduating from one of the chemical courses. Ask any of them the reason for George Eastman's success, and he will tell you that it is due to his great interest in his work, and to his broad sympathy and human understanding. Yet all of the men referred to in this chapter were interested in their work and in other men. Interest in one's work and sympathetic understanding of other men seem to be an essential to the structure of success. Without a real love for one's daily job, success in that job—whether it's running a store or a home—is impossible.

Six "Laws" of Success
All of these six qualities, integrity, industry, intelligence, imagination, intensity and interest, are necessary for one hundred per cent. success, and it is absolutely essential to possess most of them to a very highly developed degree. A study of successful men and women shows this clearly to be true. In many instances these men have developed most highly the factor in which they were weakest when starting out in life. Every young man and woman should study these six qualities and endeavor to develop them all, but especially the one in which he or she is weakest.

Mr. Edward Bok, or Collins, the Business Manager, what is the secret of Lorimer's success, they will reply, "Intensity and concentration." He does only one thing, and he thinks only one thing. It is impossible to get him interested in any outside enterprise. He has got his mind on The Saturday Evening Post and nothing can swerve him to the right or left. He has been offered all kinds of honors, directorships in great corporations and the like, but without avail. Banks have tried to get him to act on their boards; the Government has offered him honors, but like Saul of Tarsus he says, "This one thing I do."

One day I asked one of his acquaintances why it is that Lorimer doesn't play golf. The reply was: "Lorimer won't do anything unless he can do it well." He hasn't the time to learn to play golf well, and consequently he won't play it at all. This same principle underlies everything that he does. Other minister's building bigger power stations where it was necessary to transmit bigger and bigger voltages. "It takes all my time," said Dr. Steinmetz, "to design insulators big enough to take safe care of the power which Insull is developing."

Making Dreams Come True

Insull was the first electrical engineer who had both the initiative to install a big single unit to supply almost an entire state and also the persistence to bring his dreams true. It is one thing to plan one's work and another thing to work one's plan. There are many men today who have integrity and industry and even intelligence who do not succeed. They lack the fourth quality of initiative—the ability to start new enterprises blaze new trails, and perform new services.

Next to my father, I probably owe most to George H. Lorimer, Editor of The Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Lorimer is the son of that famous Baptist preacher, the late Dr. Lori-

SENDS IN FIRE ALARM FOR 'BUCK ON FIRE

The delivery truck of the O'Neil bakery at Clearfield caught fire and burned up at along the Clearfield-Woodland road just beyond the Clearfield creek bridge last evening about 8-30 o'clock. Some excitable individual who saw the burning machine turned in a fire alarm and raised the alarm department out to the creek regardless of the fact there was nothing there could do when they got there.

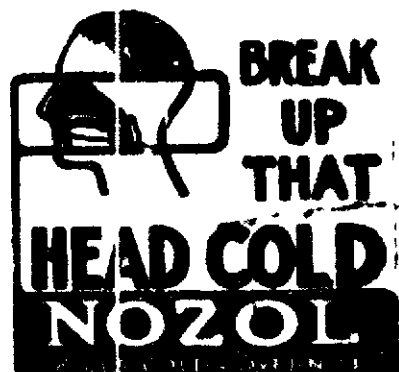

There was a couple of days' strenuous work for the fire kuller in this neighborhood. We can point out a few subjects for him and would like to head the list with the fellow who sends in such fire alarms.

In speaking of Tuesday evening's basketball team between Clearfield and Punxsy at Dubois, the sport writer of the Punxsy Spirit says Punxsy was liked because they met a better team. Referring to the Clearfield team the writer says:

The Clearfield team deserves all the flowers any lover of basketball can give it. As a whole it is fair, clean and each member a gentleman, and basketball player. Punxsy fans and players alike take their collective hats off to the boys from Joe Wilson's town."

Progress Editorials for Women

By FLORENCE DAVIES

Stop it! Stop what? Stop saying, "I'm afraid!" Stop thinking it. Yes, I know we humans inherited fear from the days when big snakes grabbed monkey babies out of the trees, according to the scientists. Animals learned early that life was a matter of constant vigilance.

But how far have we progressed, for beyond the hen who takes fright at the shadow of the hawk, if we go through the day uttering at every those hats (or chiffon stockings, or

turn remarks like these:

"I'm afraid you'll be late to school, Dick."
"I'm afraid Betty will be croupy tonight. She didn't wear her rubbers."
"I'm afraid we won't get there till the first act is half over."
"I'm afraid there isn't enough coffee for breakfast—these grocers haven't come yet."
"I'm afraid there won't be one of those hats (or chiffon stockings, or

Little fears, you say? But every day is made up of little things. When the big fears come the little ones run and hide their heads, it's true, but they are real enough to cloud the morning on ordinary occasions.

Fear brought on the World War. Fear is arising again. Fear brings disease and disaster to every home on earth, in greater or less degree. Fear and greed are responsible for the thousand and one newspaper headlines such as "Business Slumps Foretold," "Coal Companies Plan Combine," "Labor Conclave Demands Injunction," "Stock Exchange Sees Prizes Tumble."

Caution? By all means. But can-

tion should be the child of Sound Sense, not Fear. Caution thinks things through, plans wisely and goes ahead.

Some entered into by Fall and De- with Sinclair on April 7, 1923, the complaint said the lease was "null and void in that its pretended execution was effected without authority of law." As to the agreement of 1923, for the construction of government oil storage tanks by Sinclair, this was declared to have been made without advertisement or competitive bidding and was "therefore fraudulent, illegal, null and void."

In one paragraph of the government's bill it was stated that secretary of the navy Denby took no part in the negotiations of the Sinclair lease and contract and "affixed his signature thereto merely in a colorable attempt to convince the complainant of his in its terms and an exercise of discretion in connection with its making."

Detailing the negotiations between Fall and Sinclair, the complaint said that other persons, viz., the Texas Company, the Pioneer Oil Company, Edward L. Doherty, Leo A. Stoen and others, tried to get leases in the Teapot Dome, but were denied an opportunity by Fall.

It was denied that Fall "steadfastly refused to take the opinion of the solicitor of the department of the interior or the attorney general of the United States concerning the legality of the leases and charges were made that Fall 'secretly communicated' to Sinclair that he could not obtain any leases in the Teapot Dome until he prevented quit claim deed for the lands embraced within the agreement."

"Said Albert B. Fall," the complaint went on, "made the obtaining of such a quit claim deed a condition precedent to the obtaining of a lease upon the said lands after it had been fraudulently and secretly arranged between him and the said Harry F. Sinclair that the said Sinclair should obtain a quit claim deed for said mining claims, with the purpose and with the effect of preventing and disabling competitors of the said Sinclair who desired to obtain a lease upon the said lands from bidding for such lease and obtaining the same."

Reference also was made to the agreement whereby John C. Shaffer, Denver newspaper publisher, obtained certain lands in the naval reserve by negotiations with Sinclair and Fall, and to the fact that public announcement of the Teapot Dome lease was not made until several days after the contract was consummated.

"In negotiating and concluding said agreement," the bill declared, "Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair did fraudulently combine, confederate and conspire in the manner and by the acts herein above set forth, and other matters, and things, to defraud the United States of Alaska."

"(A)—By granting said lease upon said petroleum lands in violation of law;

"(B)—To favor and prefer said defendant Mammoth Oil Company over and above all other persons in violation of law;

"(C)—To insure to said defendant Mammoth Oil Company the valuable right to receive and take to exhaustion all of the oil and gas which might be obtained from said lands in said agreement mentioned;

committee did not allow Daugherty's counsel Paul Howland to challenge the testimony or cross examine the woman they declared was "racked against Daugherty."

Senator Wheeler, the "prosecutor" who went to Columbus and personally conducted Mrs. Stinson to Washington, decided today to go deeper into the stock dealing stories. Mrs. Stinson testified Smith had given her a small check of shares in White Motors and in Pure Oil, which she said Smith told her "they" got for nothing.

To this end a subpoena was issued for Will R. A. Hayes, said to be the Columbus manager of Samuel Ungerleider and Company, a Cleveland brokerage concern, through which, she said, Smith had done most of his trading under the pseudonym of Will R. A. Hayes, and Will R. A. Hayes, Number 2.

Hayes was instructed to bring his books, and they were expected to reveal whether these "bund accounts" were kept.

The "Hendbo keeper" of the Midland National bank at Washington, D. C., which Daugherty's brother, Mel Daugherty, is President, also was subpoenaed. It was in this bank that Mrs. Stinson testified her husband told her he had $175,000 in eastern money.

It was in this bank, too, she said that Smith had a personal account of $18,400, which she claimed after his death and which Mel Daugherty, she said, refused to give her on the ground it was a part of Smith's estate and consequently would have to be probated according to Smith's will.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

DOLLY

She is not really a dolly. That is, she is not a toy and she is not of the big doll family.

She is a dolly in daintiness and she is a dolly, too, because she is lovable and huggable just as a dolly is.

But she is a real live person and she is called Dolly as a pet name.

You see, she is a pet just as a doll is a pet.

When her family tried to call her by her real name it didn't seem natural. It was a nice name to use for school and for important and superior occasions, but it was not the name which sounded natural for her family to use when they wanted to let her know how much they loved her.

And so it began. They called her Dolly at first when they wanted to show her in just one more little way that they thought she was the dearest person and the sweetest person and the loveliest person.

But it didn't seem to them that there was ever a time when they didn't want to show her how they felt about her and so, from having at first called her Dolly every little while, they began to call her Dolly every single time they spoke to her.

Now once a year, as is the custom with people, she had a birthday. And the family wanted to show her how happy they were about that. They were so happy all the time having Dolly around them that they didn't quite know how they could show her it any more—and yet on a birthday every one wants to show just a little more of the love that is felt that some one else has having another birthday and they hope many, many, many more.

So they planned a little celebration. Just as they do each year. For each year it was a little different that there must be a little celebration for their beloved Dolly.

So this year they gave a very small party for her. They loved Dolly just as much as they loved the big party later on but those who loved her the most wanted one little celebration all their very own for Dolly.

They gathered around a little table and they sang this song, making up a funny little tune as they went along:

Dolly we love you ought to know that.
And we know that you know it, too.
You're neither too thin nor are you too fat.
You're perfect just being you.

Dolly we love you yours our own precious one.
You make us so glad and so gay.
You're full of action and full of fun.
And you make us feel just the same way.

Dolly we love you, and we mean what we say.
When now as we sing this song,
We wish you so many happy returns of the day.
Many, many happy returns of the day!

Then they have Dolly their presents, but not very many—just a few little things, for this year they had a surprise for Dolly. She was to pick out her little gifts herself on the next day, for they knew there were several little things she wanted which she could pick out just right.

After that they had peach ice cream, for they thought it was a good thing to have the ice cream of a flavor which was like Dolly—and Dolly was just like a little peach, too!

They had a cake with candles and they made speeches and cheered, and Dolly sat at the head of the table with a wreath about her head and at the back of her chair ribbons gayly were tied there.

Green ferns were decorating the table and a carrot made mostly out of marshmallow stood upon the table, too, for Dolly was very fond of marshmallow.

And as the smiles of all looked so brightly happy in the candlelight Dolly's heart glowed warmly that she was so loved and the hearts of the others that they had Dolly to love.

For what is nicer than on a birthday to show, just a little more than at any other time of the year, how much we love the one whose birthday we are celebrating and about which we are rejoicing?

Thomas Reclites, the DuBois man who was jailed for moonshining several weeks ago by Judge Chase on his plea of guilty, and who later asked for his release because he was suffering from a bad heart, was removed from the jail yesterday to the hospital at the County Home on account of his physical condition.

Judge Chase granted an alternative mandamus yesterday afternoon to Editor John F. Short of the Clearfield Republican, who is asking the court to help him collect $111.30 which he alleges to be due him for publishing last fall's election proclamation. The election proclamation was published in the Republican, Raftaman's Journal and two other county newspapers. Editor Short alleges Sheriff Lowell told him the price for printing the proclamation would be the same as was paid for its previous publication. When bills for publishing the proclamation were presented to the County Commissioners for payment the publishers of the Journal and the other two papers received $241.50 and that amount was also paid Editor Short. The latter demanded the additional $111.30 but it was refused him. Finally, as one of its last official actions, the old Board of Commissioners passed a resolution allowing the bill and directing the balance claimed by Mr. Short be paid.

County Controller A. G. Woodward, when he took charge the first of the year, refused to allow the claim, which he styles "exorbitant, unfair and unjust," and the mandamus was asked for by Wallace C. Egan, representing the claimant.

Judge Chase made the return day Monday, March 24th, at 10 o'clock and the matter in dispute will be aired at that time.

A real old Kentucky moonshine raid was staged out at the end of Ogden avenue about 8:30 last evening by Sheriff T. J. Lowell, Chief of Police R. J. McMullen and Assistant Ernest Woodridge. The raid was made at the home of Lewis Wisor, which is located in Lawrence township just beyond the borough line.

Wisor, a former resident of Boggs township, built himself a frame bungalow at the Ogden avenue location and moved his family, in which there is seven children, therein last summer or fall.

The authorities claim they have had many complaints against Wisor as a bootlegger and allege they had a purchase of moonshine from him on Tuesday last. When they had secured this evidence of sale Sheriff Lowell made information against Wisor and had a search warrant issued for his premises.

Last evening the officers mentioned visited the house. When they arrived at the place Mrs. Wisor answered their knock at the door and, the officers say, attempted to prevent them from entering. They forced their way into the house and shortly thereafter Wisor came in from outside. The search warrant was read and a search of the house made by Sheriff Lowell and Chief McMullen, while Officer Woodridge was left to guard the woman.

A small quantity of beer was found in the house and the "terrible and chief" went outside with Wisor to continue their search, it being the opinion of the officers the fellow had been tipped off and had removed his supplies from the house.

At this point Mrs. Wisor attempted to leave the room and as that was against orders Officer Woodridge endeavored to prevent her from leaving. In doing so he seized the woman and hearing the scuffle the other parties ran into the house. The Chief of Police went to the assistance of his fellow officer while Wisor hopped into the fray in defense of his wife. Two of Wisor's little sons had already gone to their mother's aid and the five handed battle was waging fast and furious when Sheriff Lowell tapped Wisor on the head with his mace. The blow cut a gash over Wisor's eye. He kicked the Sheriff in the groin and was only subdued when another blow from the mace laid open the top of Wisor's head and knocked him down. A pair of handcuffs were then placed on his wrists. Mrs. Wisor who the officers allege was attempting to secure a butcher knife, was also handcuffed until a semblance of order was restored.

Wisor bled profusely from the cuts in his head and the house and furniture were smeared with blood after the battle, while the officers were also profusely spotted by their prisoner's profusely spattered by their prisoner's gore.

The alleged bootlegger was taken before Squire F. G. Chorpennig, who held him in $1000 bail for his appearance at May term of court. After bail was entered Sheriff Lowell took Wisor to Dr. Yeane's office, his battered head was given attention after which the doctor looked after the Sheriff's injury from Wisor's kick.

James Ralph Miller, by his attorneys Bell, Boulton & Forsyth, began an action of ejectment in the Clearfield county courts today in an effort to recover possession of 657-1000ths of an acre of land in Lawrence township now occupied by Emerson Fenton.

Blair Shultz, by his attorneys Miller & Hartwick, filed notice of suit in Prothonotary Ralston's office this morning against Don G. and Carlton Mahaffey of Mahaffey, in an effort to recover $486.70 alleged to be due for work done by Shultz in driving headings for defendants at their mine opening in Bell township.

Attorney J. Mitchell Chase filed notice of suit on behalf of C. E. McMurray of Philipsburg and against John Hyder of Houtzdale, for the purpose of recovering $584.80 said to be due for work done and material furnished for a building Hyder erected at Houtzdale.

Yes—it can be done

The finest of cars can be sold at these prices

THE Studebaker name guarantees to you the utmost in fine-car construction. For 72 years it has stood for quality, for honest workmanship, for square dealing.

It has always stood for style and class. Remember Studebaker carriages—supreme examples of fine coach building.

Consider our facilities—mark what we have at stake. $90,000,000 in assets; $50,000,000 in plants and equipment; $10,000,000 in body plants alone.

Note our multiplying sales—the sensation of Motordom.

It is fair to assume that we can and do build the finest cars and at Studebaker prices.

What is a fine car?

A fine car means the best materials any cost can buy. We use 35 formulas for steels, each known to be best for its purpose. We pay a premium of 15% on some to get the formulas exact.

All Studebaker models are equipped with Timken bearings. There are few cars in America, regardless of price, which equal ours on this point. In our Light-Six, for instance, we put more Timken bearings than are used in any competitive car, within $1,500 of its price.

A fine car means fine engineering. We spend $500,000 yearly on that department, employing 125 able men.

It means careful construction. We have 12,500 up-to-date machines. 1,120 of our operations are exact to 1/1000 of an inch. 360 are exact to one-half of 1/1000 of an inch.

It means infinite pains. For instance, we machine all surfaces of our crankshafts as was done in Liberty Airplane Motors. We are the only makers of cars at our prices who do this.

It means careful inspection. With us it means 30,000 inspections in the manufacture of each Studebaker car.

Luxury and beauty

It means a car to be proud of. Our body finish includes 15 coats of paint and varnish.

Chase Mohair is used to upholster our closed bodies—made from the soft fleece of Angora goats.

We offer much extra equipment.

Where savings come

Then how do the Studebakers so far undersell any comparable cars?

Because we build so many. The fixed costs are divided by enormous output—150,000 cars per year.

Because we build our own bodies. The saving to you on some types is up to $300 per car.

Because we make our own forgings, saving another profit there.

Because our plants are modern and efficient. We have spent $18,000,000 on them in the past five years.

Because we keep our men, make them partners, pay them large bonuses to stay. Changing men is expensive.

Because we conduct this business in every way on the best modern lines.

What buyers save

The Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car sells for $1,045. Under ordinary manufacturing conditions it would cost you from $1,200 to $1,400.

On our Special-Six the difference might be $400 to $700.

On our Big-Six type the difference may run into thousands, depending on the number produced. For this car compares only with the highest-priced cars in Europe and America.

You will respect the Studebaker methods when you come to know them. You will admire the cars they create. You will delight in the values.

Remember that last year 145,167 fine-car buyers, after comparisons, chose the Studebaker models. So many people could not be wrong.

Learn why they did so before you buy a car at $1,000 or over. You owe that to yourself.

Go and See Why Studebaker Leads

Studebaker is now the world's largest builder of quality automobiles.

Last year, 145,167 fine-car buyers paid $201,000,000 for them.

There are 13 models.

Prices begin at $1,025.

Go see the reasons for this trend. See why sales have almost trebled in three years. Why these cars have become the sensation of Motordom.

You owe that to yourself before you buy a fine car.

Some of our Big-Sixes, for instance, have two nickel-plated bumpers, one or two extra disc wheels with cord tires, a courtesy light, a motometer, steel trunk, etc.

This factory, remember, is the ancient home of fine coach work.

Bureau Of Internal Revenue To Be Next Target Of The Senate

Washington, March 12. (INS.)—A sweeping Senatorial investigation into the bureau of Internal Revenue which handles all federal tax matters was authorized by the Senate this afternoon. The resolution of investigation was introduced by Senator Couzens, Republican of Michigan, who has engaged in frequent disputes with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon concerning tax policies and conditions. The resolution passed without a recorded vote. Five Senators will constitute the investigating committee.

Remembering a Name.

Two women who were picking out the wall paper for an apartment had made some progress, but had not finished when it was time for luncheon. The salesman had been obliging and erudite, and on the way out the women asked the name of the manager, so they could call for his services later. His name was Sheridan, and they decided to lunch by thinking of "Sheridan's Hide." Two hours later they returned and said they would like to see Paul Revere.

Disappointed.

"Did you enjoy the fair?" "I was disappointed in one thing," replied Mrs. Needleplate, who has gone in for country life. "I looked all over the cattle pavilion for an equinox, but I guess no one exhibited any this year."

All the Difference She's Seen. "Hi," said Cordelia Kiljoy. "The chief difference between men and women that I've noticed is that a man admits he has to learn what he knows, and a woman says it's her intuition that tells her."—Kansas City Star.

notice" when Viola played.

Daniel Mayer, concert manager, under whose guidance the greatest artists of the present day make their appearance, declared that never in his eight years of concert management had he been so impressed after he had heard the child play. Similar remarks and encouragement upon every hand, culminating in the child's appearance Friday afternoon as soloist with the Cincinnati Symphony at the special school children's concert in Syria mosque, have resulted in Viola being engaged as soloist with the Cincinnati organization to play next Friday night before a distinguished audience in Cleveland, and at a special affair with the same organization March 15, in Chicago. She will play in Buffalo, March 18, in concert and before a group of notables in Washington, D. C., on April 29. Conductor Reiner of the Cincinnati Symphony has written the management of that organization, asking that the child be engaged as soloist at one of the prominent concerts of the symphony in its home town next season.

Viola Mitchell was born in Pittsburgh. At an early age she evidenced a desire for things musical. Her parents, desirous of having their child achieve fame, realized the importance of bodily health and sound education, and put off allowing the child to begin musical study until eight years of age. She is a student at the Winchester school, and a leader in all branches of study.

There is none of the pale aesthetic about Viola. Very much the contrary. She is a robust, unusually healthy girl, with large expressive eyes and beautiful features, whose chief pleasure is playing out-of-doors, romping about, indulging in all the activities of the modern girl. She takes her violin playing in a commonsense manner that is amazing. There is none of the spoiled darling about her. She hears the comments upon her ability, thanks those speaking, and looks longingly out of the window, a great deal more interested in what she might be doing at home in the yard outside. She studies diligently, absorbed in her work, never dreaming over it, but getting down to hard, serious study, until mastering the task at hand, she leaves it as completely as she had studied at it, and turns to other matters.

The child's powers of concentrating are uncanny. She masters the longest of compositions in unbelievably short time. Friday afternoon she played the Mendelssohn-Bartholdy concerto in E. Minor, Op. 64, giving the three movements in exquisite fashion. She draws a lovely bow, her tone as clear and precise as it is full of beauty and rich, vibrant quality. The Kreisler Viennese melody served as an encore with Mrs. Lawrence Litchfield at the piano. The concerto was, of course, given with orchestral accomplishment.

Flattering offers to exploit the child have been refused, for the sole aim of the small girl's guides is to avoid commercializing her gifts and to develop them to their highest possibilities.

Insinuation Here.

"The semiannual appearance of the assessment blanks," said Sackville McKnutt, "reminds me that people seem to have a whole lot less money and jewelry in their possession at such times when they report robberies to the police."—Kansas City Star.

Comfortable Bed for Baby.

Babies are carried on, or rather in, long pillows by the peasant women in Hungary. A baby is laid on the pillow, the end is lapped over and is usually long enough to come up to the infant's chin. A string is then tied around the pillow, holding it close about the youngster, thus making a snug and comfortable little bed.

What Baby Had Seen.

A new baby brother came to the home of little John. In his joy he brought in his pets to show the new arrival. He brought his cat and then his pet chicken, and then standing back he said in triumph, "Now the baby has seen three animals—the cat, the chicken and the stork."

Wishes That Come True.

Good wishes have a way of realizing themselves. They have a potency almost magical, and the girl who is always wishing the best for other friends finds her hopes realized for herself, as though kindly wishes were a sort of gracious boomerang, coming back to the heart that sent it out. Just wishing others joy, if the wish is from the heart, helps to add something to the happiness of the world.

JORDAN'S

MRS. MARGARET L. TROSTLE

In the death of Mrs. Margaret L. Trostle, the world lost one of the best and noblest of women. Her quiet, sincere, Christian living endeared her to everyone. Her faithfulness and love for her family made home a blessed place for all. She was devoted to her lord, and his service in the church and its organization. Her life was one of those epistles of God known and read of all men, and it bore a message of love, hope and faith.

On Oct. 23rd, 1874, Margaret Luella Oatwell was born, and on June 18th, 1894 became the wife of Prof. W. P. Trostle, the present superintendent of schools of Clearfield county. Twelve years of their married life was spent in Houtdale, previous to moving to Clearfield, where they have lived for the past five years. Three daughters were given them, Ethel, Miriam, and Naomi. Her mother, two brothers, and three sisters survive her. The death of Mrs. Trostle by death is the death of children.

Mrs. Trostle has been ill for many months, but became worse in December, and for the past 12 weeks has been confined to her bed. She was a good soldier bearing her affliction with exemplary fortitude and unflinching patience. She wanted badly to live, and fought a good fight, but the will of the Master was stronger than her body and her love for her family and her love for her work. On last Thursday afternoon she passed peacefully away. The heart comforted with other complications made it impossible for her to overcome the dread disease and Tuesday night at 8:45 she passed quietly out from the face of earth into the presence of her Lord and Christ.

Funeral services will be held at the home on Clearfield street, on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Hillcrest cemetery. She has gone to her reward in joy, but has left a family stunned and heartbroken, and a community poorer because of her going. The Lord deal tenderly with those who sorrow, comforting them with the assurance of His presence, and His care for all who put in His hand their lives for Him to keep. He cannot fail.

Without Aid.

Dollins had been very sick and the doctor was called once more to hurry to his bedside. He hurried as fast as he could and found out of breath. "You are in this state of any assistance?" he asked. "No, you're too late," was the answer of the doctor. "He has made it by himself."

"A wrinkle on the brain is worth two on the face"

Science tells us that every idea that comes into our minds makes a little line, or wrinkle, on our brains.

And so when you learn that "it pays to send your washing to the laundry," you'll add another wrinkle to your brain.

But you will also avoid a lot of wrinkles that washday work and washday worry would bring to your face. Which is our idea of a fair exchange.
